

ARREST EX-CANTON POLICE CHIEF

HE'S AMAZED

"I can't understand it," said S. A. Lengel, former Canton police chief, when he was arrested on an indictment returned by the grand jury charging him with first degree murder in connection with the death last summer of Don Mellett, Canton publisher. Lengel is the fifth indicted for the crime.

HUNDREDS IN PERIL; TRAIN WRECKS CARS

Porters Prevent Panic As Engine Plows Into Sleepers

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 9.—One hundred or more passengers were hurled from their berths early today when the New York Limited, a crack night express of the New York Central Railroad, crashed headon into two Pullmans, filled with Rochester passengers, stationed on a siding here waiting to be attached to Boston Express 46. Several persons were slightly bruised but none was seriously injured.

Prompt work on the part of Pullman porters, who remained in their cars and reassured the passengers, averted a panic. All the passengers in the Rochester Pullmans were shaken up and about forty of them required medical attention. Railroad physicians administered to them and found that, beyond bruises and slight lacerations, none of them was seriously hurt.

Many of the passengers on the limited were also thrown to the floor by the impact. The two Rochester Pullmans were driven nearly fifty feet by the collision. Cries of the passengers went up on all sides. Many of the passengers rushed for the exits in night attire. The porters, however, quickly calmed them.

An investigation this morning indicated, it was stated, that the wreck was probably due to an error on the part of a yardman who threw a wrong switch. It was regarded as fortunate that the limited was making slow time when the impact occurred.

The rear Pullman was considered damaged. The wreck occurred shortly before 1 a. m. after an hour's delay, during which time the wreckage was cleared away, the New York limited backed out and proceeded toward its destination. The limited was bound from Cleveland to New York.

REJECTED SUITOR BLAMED FOR MURDER

WILMINGTON, Del., June 9.—Inturated because his attentions had been rejected, John Bove, 60, shot and killed Mrs. Fortinelli, 38, in the bedroom of her home here early today and attempted to kill himself by firing a bullet into his brain.

Bove was rushed to the Delaware Hospital in a dying condition. Mrs. Fortinelli died almost instantly from a bullet wound in her head.

ANSONIA BANK IS ROBBED OF $45,000

GREENVILLE, O., June 9.—Today's roundup on the robbery of the First National Bank of Ansonia, near here, of late Wednesday, reveals that the three unmasked men escaped with approximately $45,000 in currency and $40,000 in liberty bonds.

Trace of the bandits was lost at Yorkshire, fifteen miles northeast of here, according to Darke County officials.

CHAMBERLIN MAY CIRCLE GLOBE

FLYER BELIEVES HE COULD CIRCLE WORLD ON NON-STOP TRIP

Americans Consider
Hearst $100,000 Offer
To Fly Back

BERLIN, June 9.—A non-stop flight around the world is now the aim of Clarence A. Chamberlin, who has accomplished one of the greatest feats in aviation in his flight from New York to Germany breaking all distance records. "If someone is willing to put up $2,000,000 for research work, I am convinced I would soon be able to produce a plane capable of a non-stop flight around the world," said Chamberlin today in an interview with the International News Service.

"That is a large order, but I believe that at the present rate of improvement in planes it could be done."

BERLIN, June 9.—Neither Clarence A. Chamberlin nor Charles A. Levine have reached a decision on the offer of William Randolph Hearst of $100,000 for a return flight across the Atlantic to New York in the Bellanca plane. They will not make a decision until they have consulted their wives, who are due here next week.

"Everything depends on whether our wives will let us fly back," said Levine today.

"The Hearst prize offer looks fine and I like the idea a great deal, although we didn't at first think of flying back. I would like to fly back but I can't decide immediately."

"I don't know, I can't say yet," said Chamberlin when questioned about the proposal. "I am submerged in technical problems and I will have to think over the possibilities and study the topographical details. We zig-zagged all over Germany and the eastern Atlantic coming over and I don't want to do it again. I must study the maps and determine the best routes."

Both Chamberlin and Levine state they realize the magnitude of being the first to accomplish a non-stop flight to Europe and a non-stop flight return to America and that the chances of accomplishing such an achievement occupy most of their thoughts now.

BERLIN, June 9.—The German admiration for the American trans-Atlantic fliers, Chamberlin and Levine, fails to diminish.

Crowds gathered about the American embassy today and voiced loud demands that the fliers make an appearance, and a near riot ensued when two American newspaper men, who resemble the fliers in stature, left the embassy.

Both Chamberlin and Levine appeared rather tired today after the embassy dinner last night, but they were out on another round of entertainment.

Foreign Minister Stresemann entertained them at luncheon today together with the entire staff of the American embassy. Secretary of State Schubert, and Ministers Koch and Curtius.

The Aeronautical Society gave them a tea and tonight the Minister of Transport is entertaining at dinner.

SUNDAY CREEK COAL MINES STILL IDLE

COLUMBUS, O., June 9.—Mines of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., largest operators in the Hocking coal fields, will not be opened June 15, under any conditions, it was announced here today by George K. Smith, secretary and acting general manager of the operating company.

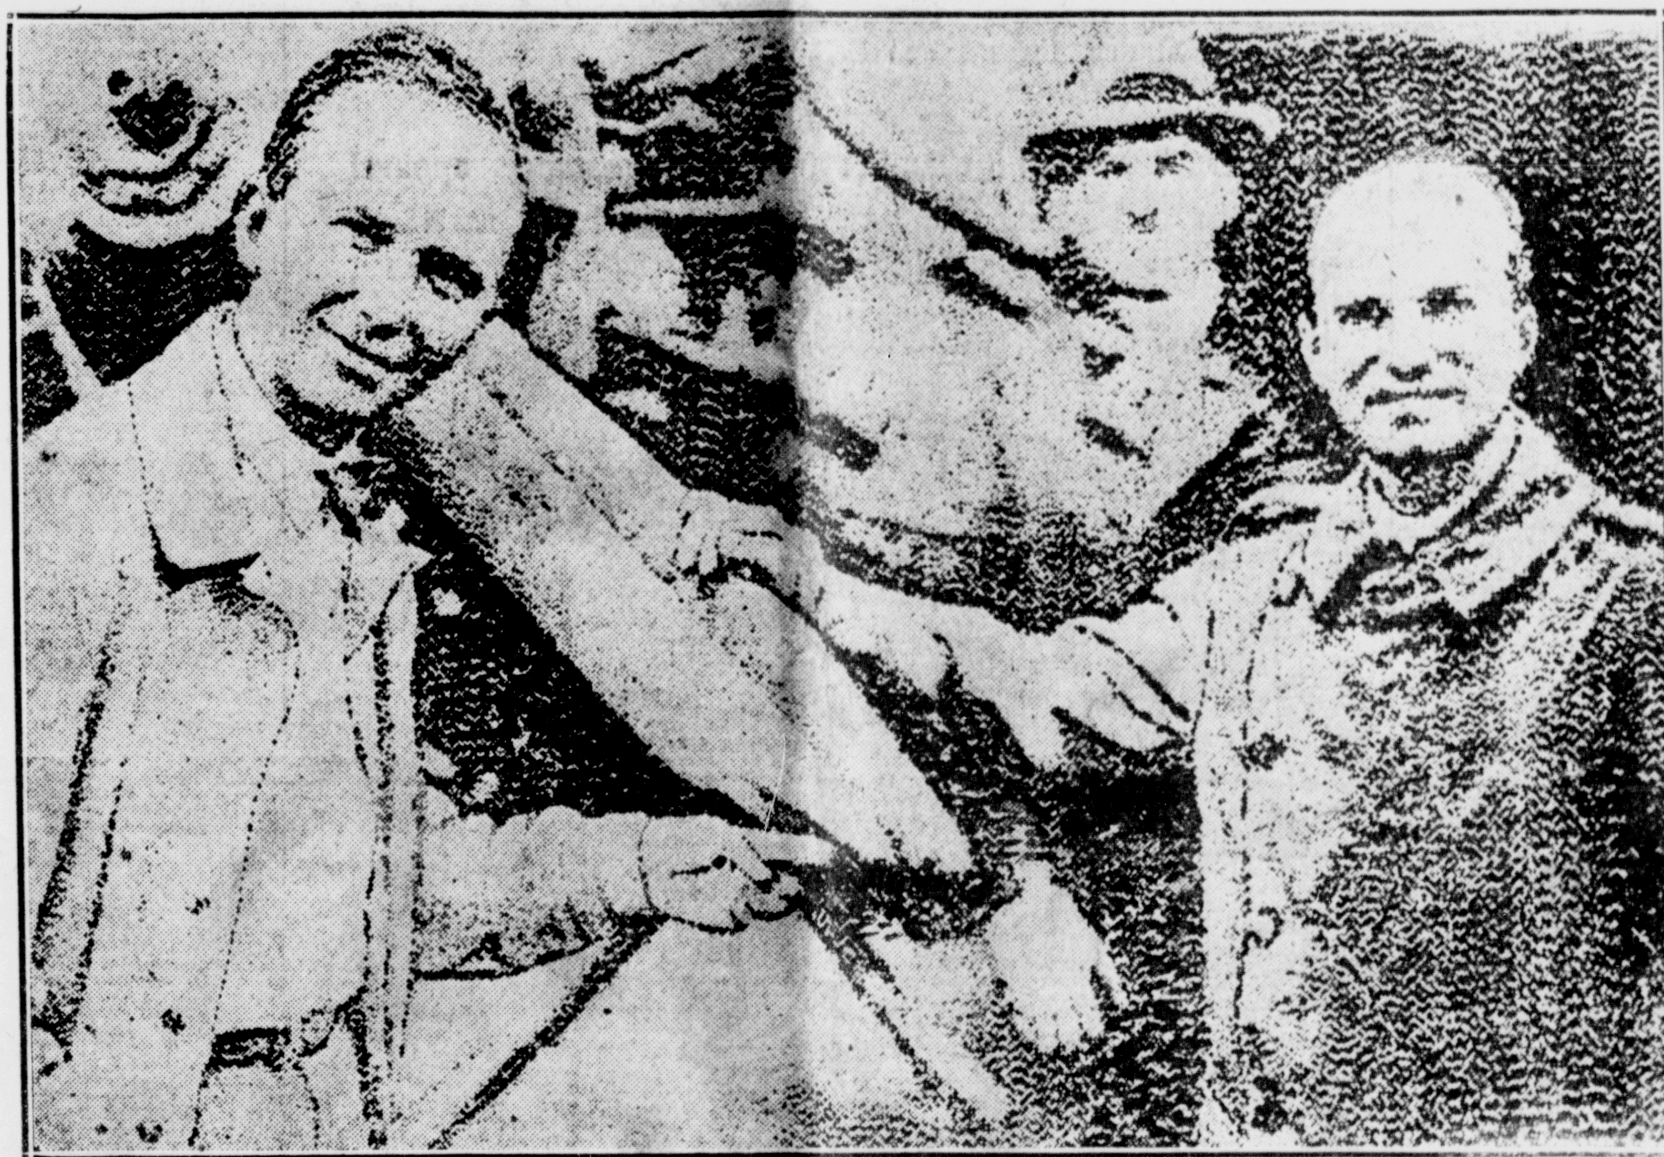

Smith's announcement, followed reports of a mass meeting held Wednesday night at Corning when 1,000 miners and citizens heard union executives.

The meeting was held, it was reported, after Athens newspapers carried announcements that the Sunday Creek Co. planned to open its mines, June 15. The same announcement, which Smith branded as false in so far as it pertained to the Sunday Creek Co., declared that other mines in the Hocking field contemplated operations, June 15.

TWO BLOWN TO BITS WHEN TRUCK LOAD OF NITRO IS EXPLODED

BUTLER, Pa., June 8.—Two Rouseville, Identification was made by M. T. Bowers, president of the Bowers Torpedo Co., employer of the victims. Bowers said a third man may have been riding on the truck when the blast occurred. Only the remnants of two bodies have been found however.

RADIOED PICTURE SHOWS FLYERS AT COTTBUS, GERMANY

This radioed picture is the first Berlin and Charles A. Levine immediately after their landing at Cottbus, Germany, in which they broke the propeller of the plane that had carried them from New York. Chamberlin, left, points to the broken blade. Levine is at the right.

RUSSIA BLAMES ENGLAND

DECLARE "BRITISH HIRELINGS" TRIED TO MURDER LEADERS

Recount "Terrorist Acts"
—50,000 At Public
Meeting

MOSCOW, June 9.—A Soviet communique, issued today in connection with a demonstration of protest against the assassination of M. Wolkoff, envoy to Poland, alleged that "British hirelings recently came within an inch of assassinating Stalin, Rykov and Bukharin," the big three of the Moscow government.

According to the Soviet accusation an attempt was planned to bring about the downfall of the government through the assassination of its three most powerful leaders.

The communique declared that a group of "white" officers, who formerly served under Admiral Koltchak, and who "were in direct contact with the head of the consular department of the British mission in Moscow, plotted to dynamite the Kremlin and the great Moscow theater during a convention of peasants and workers."

The communique traced a series of "terrorist acts" against the Soviet government since 1925, which had been inspired outside of Russia.

After reciting details of numerous attempts at assassination the communique continued: "Not one of these events had its roots in the Soviet union. All were inspired on the outside and it is quite evident that England, intent upon the forcing of war, has been attempting to disrupt the peaceful relations between the countries."

It is estimated that 50,000 workers and public officials took part in a public demonstration against the assassination of M. Wolkoff last night. Mass meetings were held in front of the headquarters of the communist internationale and other public buildings when fiery speeches were made.

HUMAN GORILLA CARVES LETTER "K" SEVEN TIMES ON ACTRESS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 9.—Doris Dore, 21-year-old stage actress, was the victim of a gorilla-like fiend who early today used a razor blade to carve the letter "K" seven times on her body.

Miss Dore told police she was awakened by a knock at her apartment door. When she answered the summons she was overpowered by a giant of a man who held her helpless while he slashed the letter "K" on her forehead.

As she struggled to free herself from the vice-like grip, her attacker drew the blade across her chin and then carved his brand four times on her chest. He next slashed her forearms and the backs of her hands.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES WILL ESCORT LINDY'S SHIP TO PORT

First Trans-Atlantic Flyer Ready For Reception—
Memphis Will Dock At Washington
Saturday Morning.

ON BOARD U. S. CRUISER
MEMPHIS, June 9.—(By Radio to I. N. S.)—The United States government today began putting the finishing touches upon arrangements to greet Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, plucky young mail plane pilot who flew from New York to Paris, and who is coming home upon this warship.

The navy department asked the exact location of the Memphis in order to have the navy dirigible Los Angeles greet the craft at sea.

There has been modification of the program for destroyers to meet and escort the Memphis, according to radiograms from Washington. One of the six destroyers sent out to escort the Memphis will come up with the cruiser at dawn tomorrow morning and take off the films and "still" pictures taken aboard the Memphis, to rush them back to New York.

Another destroyer will leave the operating base at Hampton Roads today to bring Richard R. Blythe, a friend of Lindbergh's and the New York representative of the St. Louis committee which backed the flight.

Blythe will be brought on board the Memphis to consult with Lindbergh upon plans for his return to St. Louis, where a great reception awaits him. On the same destroyer will be a corps of newspaper reporters and photographers, but they will not be permitted to come aboard the cruiser.

This destroyer will return to Hampton Roads, but four other destroyers will meet the Memphis approximately fifty miles off the Virginia Capes about 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. They will later be joined by two others.

In addition to Blythe customs officials will come aboard the Memphis to prepare for the landing.

The Memphis is expected to reach Cape Henry at 4 p. m. Friday and to reach the Washington navy yard at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. Lindbergh will go ashore at once to be greeted first by his

DE AUTREMENT BOYS ARRESTED IN OHIO; WANTED FOUR YEARS

Twins Sought For Train
Robbery Are Traced
By Letter

STEUBENVILLE, O., June 9.—The De Autrement twins, Ray and Roy, 27, sought all over the world for nearly four years, in connection with the holdup of a Northern Pacific Railroad passenger train and the killing of four of the train crew at Siskiyon, Oregon, October 11, 1923, were under lock and key today.

The notorious brothers were taken into custody here last night by federal authorities and local police. Ray was captured while at work in the local plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation. He admitted his identity and told where his brother Roy could be found. The officers then went to Roy's boarding house and placed him under arrest.

The twins were traced here through a letter written them by their equally notorious brother, Hutch, who was recently arrested in the Philippines. The pair had been here since January, both working in the mills under assumed names.

The three De Autrement brothers, pictures of whom have been displayed in every postoffice in the country, are alleged to have held up the Southern Pacific train in a tunnel. A mail car was dynamited and one mail clerk killed in the explosion. An engineer, fireman and brakeman were murdered. A huge sum of money was taken, but exact figures of the amount were not available here.

Government agents today refused to say what the amounts of reward totaled for the capture of the De Autrements, but it is believed to be in the neighborhood of $25,000. The secret service men say they have obtained from the belongings of the two brothers, sufficient evidence to clear up the Oregon holdup.

TWO HUNDRED IDLE WHEN FIRE DESTROYS FACTORY IN PLANT

GALION, O., June 9.—More than a hundred men are out of employment here today as a result of the $250,000 fire which destroyed the entire plant of the Gallion Metallic Vault Company.

Fire fighting apparatus from Mansfield, Bucyrus and Crestline was called after the fire was discovered at 1 a. m. today, and which burned until 7 a. m. The fire began in a small build-

MURDER REPORTS IN ADSHAD DEATH ARE OFFICIALLY DENIED

Officials Of Antioch Declare "Facts" In Story False

Statements contained in a sensationalized story hinting that George Frederick Adshad, 22, Antioch College student, whose body was recovered from the Little Miami River Sunday had met his death by murder rather than suicide, were denied emphatically Thursday by Antioch College officials.

The story, published in a Dayton newspaper Thursday, based its murder insinuations on reports of a missing ten pound note Adshad is supposed to have received from his parents in Stockport, Eng., before his disappearance May 27 and the alleged disappearance of an Antioch co-ed with whom the youth is said to have been friendly.

"Mystery" concerning the whereabouts of the girl was exploded when college officials announced that she had completed her term and returned to her home in Montana. The supposedly missing ten pound note never materialized, college officials say. Adshad received a fifteen pound note from his parents before his disappearance and it is on deposit with other funds of his in the Miami Deposit Bank, Yellow Springs.

Adshad disappeared May 27, but his absence was not discovered until May 31, after the holidays. Notes he left in his room indicated an intention to commit suicide which bore out previous threats he had made. The youth was in ill health and had been depressed, college officials say, and for that reason had been kept under surveillance.

When his body was found in the river it bore no marks other than those that might have been caused by being carried along in the stream more than a week. Drs. R. H. Grube and Paul D. Espey, Xenia, named by Coroner F. M. Chambliss to assist him in a post-mortem examination, said death was due to drowning. When found, Adshad's wrists were fastened with a rope evidently to keep him from saving himself by swimming when he made his suicide attempt, and the belief that he had tied himself was further borne out by the fact that one wrist was fastened with a silk knot and the length of the rope permitted him to draw his wrists eight inches apart.

Coroner Chambliss Thursday denied that he had found papers in the dead youth's pockets which, when examined, might shed light on the purported "mystery." College officials are incensed at publication of what they term a misleading story.

Denials of all of the purported "facts" on which any theory but suicide were based, were made Thursday by Dean Philip C. Nash. Inquest into Adshad's death will be conducted by Coroner Chambliss next Wednesday but is not expected to result in any verdict other than suicide.

Some time Saturday Prosecutor Harter is scheduled to meet Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, in Mansfield to interview a man whose identity was not revealed, in connection with the Mellett investigation. Harter said, however, that the man is not a reformatory prisoner.

"I'll be ready then, too," Lengel said. "The sooner the better."

Lengel was stoic as he was served with the capias by Sheriff Ed Gibson late yesterday afternoon, shortly after the grand jury had returned the indictment. Gibson found his prisoner sitting on the front porch of his home.

"I've come to arrest you," Gibson said.

"Well I certainly can't understand it," Lengel replied.

"Yes, it's a pretty big blow. I guess," the sheriff observed.

"It would be," the former chief retorted, "if I weren't innocent. But I'm not afraid."

LENGEL ACCUSED OF MURDER IN SLAYING OF EDITOR MELLETT

Fifth Man Indicted Consents To Early Trial
Of Case

CANTON, June 9.—While Seranus A. Lengel, deposed Canton chief of police, was in Stark County Jail here today, awaiting arraignment on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Louis Mazer, indicted last fall as one of the Mellett conspirators, was to be sentenced.

Mazer, whose confession to his part in the plot to slay the young editor resulted in the conviction of Floyd Streitenberger and in turn the indictment of Lengel, has thrown himself on the mercy of the court. He is charged with first degree murder, but Common Pleas Judge A. W. Agler, before whom he is scheduled to appear today, probably will not give him a heavy sentence.

Lengel, snow-white haired, 65 year old former chief, who had only one more year to serve before he was eligible for pension, was visited in his cell by W. Bernard Rodgers, young lawyer associated with the law firm with which former United States Senator Allee Pomerene was identified here.

Rodgers may represent Lengel in the murder trial. He has been counsel for the aged chief in efforts which still are pending to force Mayor Stanford M. Swarts and the civil service commission to return him to his post.

Lengel is expected to be arraigned Saturday, although Prosecutor Henry W. Harter, Jr., had not decided on the exact date this morning. Harter declared, however, that he will demand a speedy trial, and suggested July 5, as a possible starting date.

"I'll be ready then, too," Lengel said. "The sooner the better."

BIBLE THOUGHT

GENUINE PRAISE:—Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me; and to him that ordereth his way aright will I show the salvation of God. Psalm 50:23.

PROFIT IN GOODWILL FLIGHT

Announcement that Major Dargue, commander of the recent good will flight round South America, will accompany a business man on a seven weeks' tour of the United States in the interest of South American commerce, shows that the government is awake to the possibilities of capitalizing on the recent flight.

That trip was more than a gesture of military preparedness or an air reconnaissance of the tropics. It was a gesture of good will, and if it paved the way for increased commercial relations between the two Americas, as Major Dargue's coming business trip would make it, the flight will prove itself to have been of immense value.

NOT ALL NONSENSE

That great railroad builder, James J. Hill, once asked for the secret of success, replied: "The ability to save money is the secret of all success. If you can save, you will succeed, if not you might as well give up now, the seed of success is not in you."

There are a goodly number of people still mightily taken with the idea that thrift is all nonsense. They wear themselves out trying to find some short cut to success. They yearn for large profits and quick returns. The saving habit appears too slow. The almost miraculous power of money to increase does not appeal to them. Yet the advice of men like Hill, and the life stories of similar leaders all hinge upon the ability to save, and go back to Franklin's wise axiom always to spend a little less than one earns.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, June 9.—Many suburbanites who commute to New York park their cars at the suburban station in the morning and ride home in them in the evening. Ray Sisley, a fellow Mammoth, the money he got out of it. An actor's benefit was arranged for him and the profits derived from it was put into a trust fund out of which he is paid enough to live on as long as it lasts. The gay life ruined him as a writer. . . . Another failure and down-and-outer, who hit me for some money the other day, is a perfectly able-bodied man, who is not addicted to drugs and has no vices—except one; he will not work. He comes from a highly aristocratic European house, which once had money but lost it all during the war. He had always been used to living royally and when the cash was cut off he kept on living royally until what he had in hand was exhausted. For quite some time he has been trading royally by leading tradesmen, skipping alms, borrowing money from rich friends and acquaintances. He was sued by tailors, landlords, doctors, hotels, restaurants, haberdasheries, and ticket agencies. But he had an imperious front which got him credit in one place, whenever credit was closed to him in another. But this of course, could not continue indefinitely. Even people who could afford to lose a hundred dollars or so, finally got tired of him and refused to let him have money. He beat so many tradesmen that finally he could not get a necktie without cash payment. He had to move into a cheap room in a part of town where he was not known. Even then he beat the landlady and the delicatessen stores, and would have to move to another part of town. He exists by borrowing a dollar or so at a time usually from people who cannot afford it. He could easily make a decent living as an elevator starter, a door tender, a floor-walker, or head waiter; but he considers work beneath his dignity. In another year or so, democratic America will show him that there is no work beneath the dignity of a man who cannot get something better, and if he won't work at what he can do, he will starve.

Then there are those envious men who take in only one morning newspaper, hog the paper at the breakfast table, and calmly walk off with it to finish reading it on the train. And there is the fellow who can get away with calling his wife up at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and telling her he is bringing out a friend to dinner on the next train. And there is the fellow who buys bootleg Scotch at $75 a case and puts up a squawk when his wife wants $15 for a new hat. And there is the chuck who plays golf at a dollar a hole and observes the club rule against tipping the caddy. And there is the brave fellow who wins $200 in an all-night poker session and tells his wife gruffly that he lost 40 bucks. And there is the strong, silent man who sprawls across the seat of a crowded suburban train, with his arms outstretched, reading a newspaper, so that timid folk dabble summer on courage to sit down beside him. And there is the lovable cuss who cuts out of traffic and races ahead of the line on the wrong side of the road at a 40-mile clip, forcing oncoming cars to slow down and draw toward the curb, when there is no cop around. And there is the big business man who calls several office conferences on successive days to thrash out the question as to whether it would be bad for his morale to grant an additional $2 in salary to an $18-a-week file clerk, who has asked for a raise after two years' employment.

On the Other Hand There is the thoughtful and considerate woman who runs her husband into debt by living and dressing on a scale to impress her acquaintances. And there is the woman who plays bridge all the afternoon and puts up an argument when her husband wants to join the boys in a little session of poker. And there is the woman who just must go away to the seashore every summer, while her husband sweats in the city, and who complains to her husband that he never wants to be with her any more, whenever he puts in a Saturday afternoon at golf. . . . Here and there: One of the pathetic panhandlers of Broadway is a hop-head, whose addiction to drugs has cost him fame, money and self-respect. Not so many years ago he was a matinee idol who was paid one of the highest salaries current in the theater at the time; and he lived sumptuously and spent freely. He lost out because, after he became a drug addict, he could not be depended upon for his hearings or to show "the show" by balling up his lines and acting crazily on the stage. He is now a hopeless wreck. A playwright, who wrote one of the biggest hits in the history of the

The Girl Of The Golden West

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

OUR DEBT TO IMPRACTICAL PEOPLE

I heard a young college student last night speaking somewhat patronizingly of the professor under whom he is studying economics.

"He teaches economics," said the boy, "and yet he, himself, is an economic failure. His salary is so small that his family have scarcely enough to eat."

Probably true enough, but it's never safe to assume that a man can't teach a subject, write about a subject, or discuss it intelligently just because he couldn't DO the things he talks about.

I doubt if a more impractical or unbusinesslike man ever lived than old Adam Smith, whose Inquiry Into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations, probably makes him the father of political economy and founder of what ever science of business today exists. He was an awkward, absent-minded Scotch professor, never engaged in business or trade in any way, who would have been incapable of conducting even a small notion shop. If you had asked any of his neighbors what kind of fellow he was, they would doubtless have said:

"Oh, he writes books but is hopelessly impractical."

They might have said the same thing about Darwin, who was thrown out of school for income.

Yet his Origin of Species, and Descent of Man, revolutionized the thought of the world.

It is easy to exaggerate the importance of the practical man and to minimize the value of the theorist. A man actually engaged in business might have too many petty prejudices, and he too close to his subject to see it in proper perspective.

During the war, foremen from big factories, accustomed to handling men, had plenty of opportunity to reach places of command, but on the whole they did not make as creditable a showing as did inexperienced young men who had been in college studying mere theory.

Many an eminent and useful dramatic critic has never been able to write a successful play. William Archer's melodrama, The Green Goddess, did not come until many years after his reputation as a critic had been well established.

It isn't necessary to be in the egg. Many of the greatest men of all time were mere theorists.

How to Achieve Beauty

LEG EXERCISES THAT DEVELOP SYMMETRY

Leg symmetry like symmetry of any other part of the body can be achieved by the faithful and consistent practice of certain exercises.

One of the greatest problems of the present moment in regard to leg symmetry is the matter of knees. Knees are so much in evidence these days because of the continued vogue of the ever-increasingly abbreviated skirts, that knees which are too large and which give a dwarfed appearance to the calves of the legs, offer a real beauty problem.

The size of knees can be materially reduced by the faithful practice of the following exercises: Stand with feet together, body erect—swing the left leg backward, letting the toes touch the ground as though you were stepping backward. Put all your weight on the left leg. Then lift the right foot from the floor, slightly bending the knee. With the full weight on the left leg slowly raise and lower your body six times by bending and straightening the left leg. Reverse the movement and as you become more adept in doing the exercise increase the number of times you practice it.

Another exercise that is recommended for the reduction of the knees is as follows:

Stand with hands on hips and ten inches ahead of the left, then sink on the left knee. Return to original position and bring the left foot ahead of the right and bend to the right knee. This should be repeated several times.

For knees that are bony and scrawny instead of soft and white, the above exercises will be good from a muscular standpoint, but they should also be massaged every night with a good rich nourishing cream, such as you would use for plumping your hands or face.

Another exercise which is good, giving the knees more symmetry and which is also good for reducing superfluous flesh around the hips is the following:

Lie flat on the floor at right angles to a wall with legs parallel to the wall, body relaxed and arms loosely extended at sides. Bend left knee, letting foot slide down wall and the weight of the leg carrying the knee to rest against abdomen and chest.

Then extend the left knee forcibly, pushing foot up wall, heel leading until back of knee is against the wall. Repeat with right leg and alternate twenty to thirty times. Done with zest this exercise will also reduce superfluous abdominal flesh.

The calves of women's legs have a tendency to become knotted and muscular from the constant wearing of high heels, as it is the calf of the leg which is most seriously affected when we stand on our toes as we are constantly doing when we wear high heels. A very fine exercise for developing the calves is to kneel on left knee, arms at sides, fingertips touching the floor. Then proceed to throw the left leg back as far as possible, supporting the weight on the right foot. Then quickly change your position so that right leg is bent under you.

To reduce the lower leg and ankle try the following:

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"Whether or not this is a wholly civilized age may be open to discussion; but that it is a business age is not subject to doubt or debate. If war violates the principles of sound business, if it shows no profit to either party to the conflict, if it brings nothing but disaster to the individual nations concerned and demoralization to the business of the world, it is doomed to die."—Wm. Randolph Hearst.

"I think there will probably be a war worse than the great war within a century, and it is perfectly possible that it may prove fatal to our particular type of civilization. At the present time the main thing science can do is to make them unprofitable for the victors as well as the vanquished. The only kind of science that can stop them is psychological, but psychology is still in a very chaotic stage and does not yet deserve the title of science."—Professor J. B. S. Haldane.

"The antithesis between science and religion is the antithesis between the seen and the unseen, between spirit and matter. Science cannot apply its yardstick to religion which is intangible and elusive. Pursue evolution to its logical limit, and it obliterated the distinction between man and beast, and leaves man, redemption and immortality."—Professor Carl Bauer.

"Modern methods of scientific research are being applied to the scourge of war, just as they are applied to the scourge of cancer, and all this in itself is a hopeful sign. The twentieth century has best work with twentieth century tools, whether the effort be directed toward increasing the sum of human enjoyment or toward diminishing man's inherited instincts for violence and conflict. These modern scientific methods are now, somewhat belatedly, being actively applied to the scourge of Bolshevism. I believe that the people in every country have got to choose between order and anarchy, between honesty and thievery, between everyday virtue and crime."—Myron T. Herrick.

The $30,000 bond issue to build a new public school in Cedarville was defeated by sixty votes at the third election on the question. Miss Elsie Janis, vaudeville actress, who made her stage debut at Neff Park, four years ago, gets $3,000 per week. The Boys' Welfare Club baseball team defeated the Yellow Springs Buckeyes, 3 to 2. William Moorehead, student at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., arrived home for the summer vacation. County Auditor William Dadds is enjoying a pleasant excursion to Cincinnati.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A. F. Currier

WORRY Do you know what worry means? I fancy there are few Americans who have reached maturity who could not give you a chapter about it from their own experience. It may be a disease, it may be merely a tendency to disease, and if it is indulged in to any great extent for any considerable period of time it is pretty sure to eventuate in disease, frequently in insanity, not infrequently in consequences which are serious or even fatal.

There is with many an inherited tendency to worry, with others the tendency is acquired, both are bad. When a child, boy or girl, especially a girl, has a father or mother or both who have been nervous, hysterical, dissipated, vicious, it is the most natural thing in the world that their children should be fretful, ill-natured suspicious and given to worry.

They worry about their studies, about their games, about their standing among their companions, about many things by which a healthy, normal child is not disturbed and when the danger period of adolescence and puberty arrives this worrying tendency takes a fresh start, as it were, and becomes fixed.

Such people may develop into adults, capable men or women so far as the work of life is concerned, but they are forever handicapped by this evil tendency and life becomes a burden to them.

It is young people of this kind from whose ranks many of the suicides come. How necessary, how imperative it is therefore that they should be placed under influences which will encourage self-control and mental equilibrium.

The acquired tendency to worry comes later in life. It results from severe application to work, from insufficient sleep, from fatigue, from disappointment, sorrow, sickness, and a host of other causes.

People often say to such individuals, "Don't Worry! Ah, it is easy enough to give such advice, but it takes a strong man or woman to profit by it. Blessed is the man or woman who, in such cases and conditions, has power enough to keep this demon down and drive him out."

Of course, good, wise friends and advisers are of great help in such matters but the bulk of the work must be done by the individual himself. It is like the drink habit or the dope habit; unless your will power is efficient, you are not likely to win.

One thing we can be thankful for and that is that a large proportion of the things we worry about exist only in the imagination. I often think of the story of St. Jerome who lived to be 120 years old. Some one said to him when he was near his end:

"Father, you have lived a long time and had various experiences; what do you consider the most important thing in all this long period?"

After a few moments meditation, he replied: "So many of the evil things I have worried about have never come to pass."

May not this be a helpful suggestion to you, and you and you?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

MRS. J. J. A.: My mother, age 58, is very stout and has sores on her thighs which are very painful. She had her teeth removed, thinking that the sores might proceed from infection in them, but the sores are worse than ever, and I would be glad if you could offer any advice.

Answer.—It is possible that these are varicose ulcers, due to diseased veins, which are common with fleshy people, after middle life especially among those who have worked hard and have been constantly on their feet. If that should be the case they are often healed by the persistent use of lunar caustic, the sores being dressed and the limbs bandaged every day. It is also very important to have a free movement of the bowels every day.

Are you one of those unfortunate ones who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs, then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains completely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 415 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it where a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs, then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains completely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 415 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it where a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

RHEUMATISM

May be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunate ones who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

ANTIOCH STUDENTS GIVEN SILVER CUPS FOR AQUATIC FEATS

Two silver loving cups were awarded to Claire Dowler and Elizabeth Clark, individual winners of the third annual aquatic meet of the "B" division of Antioch College at M. R. Grinnell's Park near Yellow Springs Wednesday afternoon.

More than 500 people were assembled for the swimming carnival, one of the largest crowds ever to witness the events. Fast competition was provided for the entrants.

Miss Clark was presented with the girls' cup, offered by Mr. Grinnell, for scoring eighteen points. Her nearest competitor was Charlotte Burton, Springfield, who had fourteen points to her credit.

Dowler was awarded the men's cup when he made twenty points. Harold Class was a close second with eighteen and these two swimmers had practically a monopoly on the boys' events.

The feature of the program was the 200-yard relay race won by the Hancock Hall team over the Baker House quartet, which finished second. Members of the winning team were Mansfield, Rope, Lelerson, and Underhill. Baker House was represented by Whitmore, Reel, Lakin and Mainland.

Class and Dowler had the honors in the 25, 50, 100 and 200-yard free style races for men and all to Dowler in second in the two shorter events, but this order was reversed in the two longer swims. Dowler coming in first with Class runnerup.

Class also won the 25-yard back stroke but this was nullified when Dowler captured the breast stroke event. The spirited competition of these two students for highest individual honors was the feature of the meet.

In the girls' rowing race, Peggy Sharp triumphed over Charlotte Burton, and in the same event for men, Rope defeated Allen. George Lakin carried off first place in the diving event while second honors went to Darmon Whitmore.

Robert Rope, student was in charge of the swimming carnival.

ANTIOCH COLLEGE SENIORS TO OFFER CLASS PLAY FRIDAY

Written by three members of last year's graduating class, "Horace Mann," a play in three acts depicting the tragedy of the life of the noted educator, and an epilogue, will be presented by the Antioch Players at the Antioch College seniors class play Friday night, June 24 at 9 o'clock on the east steps of the college.

The play was written by Miss Naomi Brackett, Miss Dorothy Palmer and H. Lee Jones, but production was delayed until this year due to the time necessary for preparation of the play and gathering of materials for the pageantry.

A dialogue, which reproduces conversations that are said to have actually taken place, furnishes background for the play. These conversations are as reported by early students of the college, who have contributed material based on the life of the college's first president.

The story opens with the momentous day on which Horace Mann, responsible for the tax-supported school system in Massachusetts, was offered the nomination for governor of that state on the same day he received an offer to become president of Antioch College. The educator is shown with Mrs. Mann while making his decision, wondering whether to take the course of reforming the world through political intrigue or to take his stand beside youth and work out the ideals of education in the new country of the West. He decides in favor of youth and comes to Antioch.

A pageant of opening day when Mann startled visitors with the declaration in his inaugural address is presented in the second act. Even on this great occasion, financial troubles, that are soon to harass him, creep in.

The third act provides the visit of Ralph Waldo Emerson, whose essays were looked upon with horror by conservatives of that day. Emerson commends Mann's work and advises him to continue it in the face of charges of "higher criticism and ungodliness."

The play closes with Mann full of great ideas and ideals but able to transfer only a small portion of them to the world because he is exhausted from criticism, disputes, and financial difficulties.

The greatest dramatic moment is reached at the end when death brings the production to a close and Mann collapses, as he uttered his best known words, "and I beseech you, my friends; be ashamed to die until you have won some victory for humanity."

WILBERFORCE WILL GRADUATE THREE HUNDRED HERE JUNE 16

Three hundred young men and women graduates, said to be the largest graduating class in the history of Wilberforce University, will receive their diplomas and certificates at the sixty-fourth annual commencement exercises, Thursday morning, June 16, with United States Senator Simon D. Pess, Yellow Springs, delivering the commencement address in Jones' Auditorium.

President Gilbert H. Jones expects the commencement will be largely attended by distinguished educators from different sections of the country. Already many of the old graduates have arrived and are on the campus to take part in an Alumni business meeting, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock to adopt plans for raising $200,000 as an endowment fund.

The opening exercises for the week will start Sunday morning at 10 o'clock when Bishop W. A. Fountain, A. M., D. D., Atlanta, Ga., will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. John Acton Hill, Louisville, Ky., is to speak to the religious societies and Greek letter organizations. At 8 o'clock in the evening the graduating class from Payne Theological Seminary will attend in a body and Rev. J. C. Caldwell, Nashville, Tenn., for a number of years secretary of the Allen Christian Endeavor Society of the A. M. E. Church, will deliver the annual sermon.

RESERVES FIGHT IN DEFENSE OF LEAGUE LEADERSHIP HERE

First place in the Buckeye League will be at stake when the Xenia Reserves and Dayton Police meet in a double-header at Washington Park Sunday afternoon.

A twin bill was made necessary because the Reserve-Police game a month ago was postponed because of rain and it was decided to play the contest off as a part of a double-header.

Not having met this season, both the Reserves and Police have been undefeated in the league and a double defeat for either team means elimination from the race. Should the rival clubs break even in the two games a tie will exist and the league championship will probably not be decided until the third and deciding meeting between the two teams later in the season.

The first game will start about 2:30 o'clock and the aftermath will be limited to seven innings. Russ Payton will hurl one of the games with Cyphers probably working in the second.

ATTORNEY GENERAL AND GOVERNOR TEST INDIANA'S DRY LAW

INDIANAPOLIS, June 9. To save the lives of their loved ones, Governor Ed Jackson and Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom of Indiana have rendered themselves liable to imprisonment through violation of the Wright bone-dry law, the most severe in the country.

That fact was brought out in a remarkable letter Gilliom wrote to Governor Jackson urging him to the next legislature amendment of the State liquor law to permit the use of whiskey for medicinal purposes. One pint of whiskey was ordered by physicians for Mrs. Jackson, wife of the governor, who was dying from pneumonia. The governor went to Gilliom, who informed him that there was no lawful way to obtain the liquor, according to the letter.

But the governor's desires to obey the law was less than his love for his wife. He got the liquor from Canada.

A similar method of "illegally" obtaining whiskey was utilized by Gilliom, who a year ago suffered the torture of a parent when his three sons were ill from pneumonia and typhoid fever.

But Frank E. Wright, author of the law, still maintains there is no necessity to lessen its severity. "Doctors have told me there is no medicinal quality in whiskey," he maintains stubbornly.

Gilliom's friend who supplied the liquor for his sick children after the physician had said it was necessary paid dearly for his act of generosity. A few days later he was arrested for having possession of liquor under the bone-dry statute.

"You and I procured the needed whiskey from friends who were secretly preserving it just such anticipated emergencies in their own households, risking all the while, discovery and imprisonment, because of such mere possession," Gilliom wrote the governor.

"We had a natural right, indeed, a supreme duty, to save the lives of our dear ones by any means available. Just as the lowest and poorest citizen has a right equally precious to him and a duty no less compelling."

"No government and no law can justly interfere with that right and that duty."

Under the Indiana dry law, physicians are prohibited from prescribing whiskey even under the most desperate circumstances. Carrying liquor from place to place and giving it away and even possessing are crimes. Even the mere asking for liquor may be used as evidence of conspiracy to violate the law.

With the Indiana Anti-Saloon League adamant on changing a command of the celebrated prohibition statute and as fast growing body favorable to liberalization, Gilliom's letter was expected to be a factor in the 1928 gubernatorial campaign.

The soothsaying profession in Indianapolis has suffered a severe blow through a rather unfortunate guess by one of the women fortune tellers.

Representative Frank E. Wright, author of the bone dry law of Indiana, the most arid in the nation, was the subject of the guess when his son Harold, 18, went to consult the seeress.

"Ah, young man, I sympathize with your unhappy fate, your father is a hard drinker," was her stab at the occult.

"Why, he never took a drink in his life," the amazed young man replied.

Recovering a bit of her composure, the fortune teller said:

"Perhaps yes; perhaps no; but someone is going to persuade him to take a drink."

YOUNG PUPILS GIVE PROGRESS PAGEANT AT ANTIOCH SCHOOL

Contributions of the various nations to the progress of the world were delineated in a "Pageant of Progress," presented by students of the Antioch School Junior high Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the school lawn.

The pageant showed the product of the year's work in various school departments. Each student wrote his own speech in the English department. Material for the speeches was obtained from social studies, costumes and banners were made in the arts and crafts department and standards were made by manual training students.

"Progress," central figure of the pageant, was portrayed by Betty Swing. With her were four contributors, "Art," Wilma Hilbur, "Science," Lincoln Matthews, "Agriculture," Myron Potter, and "Industry," Everett Jones.

Eleven nations represented were: "Early Peoples," Susan Hiff; "China," Lee Leiserson; "India," Katherine Kingsbury; "Greece," Ethel Hiff; "Italy," John Folk; "Japan," Harriet Cannon; "Great Britain," William Marshall; "France," Martha Collins; "Germany," Robert Nosker; "Russia," Albert Swing; and "United States," John Kennedy.

Each nation's episode had an interlude during which its songs, dances and national music were given.

Miss Clara Hirst was in charge of music for the pageant assisted by Anne Carr and Dorothy Hilbur, of the high school department. The entire cast and chorus was composed of about sixty people, as students of the upper elementary group assisted in the interludes.

The pageant was worked out in accordance with the ideas of the students, themselves, and heads of the various departments involved co-operated in the presentation. Miss Winifred Matthews, of the college was consultant regarding costumes which students designed for their parts.

Two programs of piano music of many lands are to be given at the home of Miss Clara Hirst Saturday and Monday afternoons, incidental to the pageant of the progress of nations.

A tea and musical will be given at 4 p. m. Saturday with the following students assisting: Avery Leiserson, William Groves, Elizabeth Swing, Frances Morgan, Susan Hiff, Marjorie Fulton, Katherine Kingsbury, Harriet Cannon, Ethel Hiff and Lincoln Matthews.

Monday at 4 p. m., those taking part will be: Mary Anne Kingsbury, Sarah Leiserson, Josephine Lee, Curtis Nash, Waldon Matthews, Jerry Roach, Erma Nash, Gordon Matthews, Allen Roach, Ruth Leiserson, Constance Williams, Alathena Smith, Pattie Frause, Jane Matthews and Manu Chatterjee.

JOHN W. HARPER IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

John William Harper, 65, formerly of Yellow Springs, died Thursday morning at 5:30 o'clock at the home of his sisters, the Misses May and Sarah Harper, in Jamestown. He had been in failing health two years and a stroke of paralysis suffered last Friday, hastened his death.

Mr. Harper had resided with his sisters a year, on account of his health. He was the son of the late Thomas F. and Mary Ginn Harper, well known Greene Countians.

His wife preceded him in death nine years. One daughter, Miss Bernice Elizabeth Harper, survives with three sisters, the Misses May and Sarah Harper, Jamestown and Mrs. James Barnett, near Xenia.

Mr. Harper was a life-long member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was also affiliated with both the Masonic and Odd Fellow Lodges.

Funeral services will be held at the home of the Misses Harper, in Jamestown, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of the Rev. L. D. Vesey of the Jamestown M. E. Church, with interment in Jamestown Cemetery.

REV. R. E. BROWN, OF BAPTIST CHURCH, TO RESIGN PASTORATE

The resignation of the Rev. R. E. Brown, as pastor of the First Baptist Church, was tendered at the monthly business meeting of the church, Wednesday night, August 31, when the Rev. Mr. Brown will close five years of service as pastor of the local church. The Rev. Mr. Brown's plans for the future have not been disclosed although he announced he will continue in the ministry.

The resignation was not a surprise to the board as the Rev. Mr. Brown notified the advisory committee of the church three weeks ago that he expected to leave, so that the committee had plans laid for obtaining another pastor. As yet, no minister has been called by the church.

The pulpit committee that was elected by the church to recommend another pastor is composed of S. W. Guyton, chairman; William Maxwell, Harley Wolary, Mrs. Mary M. Meredith and Mrs. L. A. Wagner.

At the board meeting, the church expressed its deep regret of the loss of its pastor, who has been untiring in his efforts. "Under the energetic and faithful leadership of the Rev. Mr. Brown, the work of the church has moved forward," a church official said Thursday.

"His helpful personality shall be greatly missed. The church has felt itself fortunate in having a pastor whose sermons were inspiring and spiritual. When he leaves Xenia, he goes with the best wishes of his many friends."

Edmund M. Littell, son of Mrs. Joseph Littell, and nephew of Mrs. Mary M. Meredith, N. King St., is author of "Whirling Wheels," a serial which will begin in the August number of "The Popular Science Monthly."

Mr. Littell's writing heretofore has been confined to short stories of the steel mills and his first serial showing the growth of the "Horseless Age" is being hailed as a "find." His writings of past years have included "Midge" and "Fire-Shy."

His wife, Mrs. Jane Littell is also a writer. The Littell home is in New York City.

FARMER ATTACKED BY BULL; BRUISED

Raymond Hopping, farmer, near Spring Valley, narrowly escaped death or serious injury, when he was attacked by a bull on his farm,

Wednesday evening.

Bert Crane, employe, on the Hopping farm, succeeded in driving off the animal, which trampled Hopping, fracturing several ribs, and bruising him about the body. Mr. Hopping had attempted to feed the animal, which had never before shown any disposition to viciousness, when it attacked him. His injuries are not thought serious but he is confined to his home.

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Will their color defender become a Ritzie member?

"As president of the Ritzie club, let me congratulate you, Bill Roscoe, on winning the Ritzie marble tournament." Marty was speaking in his most dignified voice.

The situation was one that called for dignity, and the twins, Patsy and Betty Ann, the other four Ritzies, were sitting stiff as poker in their canvas chairs in the little carpenter shop. Bill, who was almost a stranger to them and had only come over to enter the Ritzie tournament, had won the first prize and was soon to match his skill in marbles against an enemy of the Ritzies.

"Of course you realize," continued Marty, "that as winner of the Ritzie tournament you are now to play Max Mason's best marble player, with the Ritzie colors at stake. If you win, you will be initiated into the Ritzie club with high honors. If you lose, well, no one knows what will happen to it. It may be the end of the Ritzies. We're counting on you, Bill."

"Here are the Ritzie colors that are to wear across your chest when you play the match game," Patsy said, as she handed him a wide ribbon band with white letters spelling the word Ritzie.

Bill could find nothing to say but continue to look about in a dazed manner that struck fear in the hearts of the Ritzies. Was he the man to defend the Ritzie colors? He didn't seem to have the pep that the Ritzies were used to putting into things. Yet he had won the Ritzie marble tournament, and it had been understood beforehand that the winner should play Max's in the playing of the championship game, Old Jupe.

"What are you doing?" called out Max.

"I'm marking in the star that we use in the game of Old Jupe," answered Marty. He was about to explain that if Max hadn't been too high hat to come to the reading of the rules, he would have known all about it, but Tommy Walker saved him the trouble.

"You fellows think you know so much about marbles that you can't even come to the official reading of the rules for a new game. It'll serve you right if Bob gets all tangled up. We were there when Marty received your note saying that you wouldn't come, so we know that he gave you a chance to hear about Old Jupe."

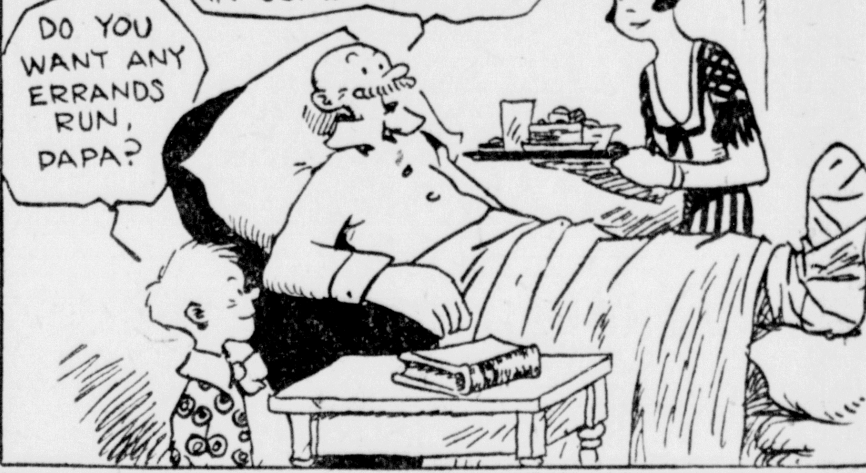

Loud cheers followed Tommy's speech, and seeing that the crowd was against them, Max and his gang decided to face the music, and Bob Taylor entered the game without knowing the least thing about it.

The first round of play was a joke. Marty had told him where to shoot from, but wishing to show off, Bob had aimed at one of the farthest marbles instead of the closest one and though he had knocked it out of the star, he lost his turn and gave a score of one to his opponent. Instead of winning praise from his audience as he expected, he received only laughter.

"That's a good way to start off the game. Give a score to your opponent!" chided one boy.

Seeing that it would be hopeless to ask him to play a game that

LABORATORY WORK OF HEALTH BOARD DEFINED BY TURNER

COLUMBUS, O., June 9.—Members of the state board of health may limit the service of the state laboratory for the diagnosis of contagious and infectious diseases to physicians and surgeons licensed to practice in Ohio, but cannot legally refuse to furnish such service to certain physicians and surgeons whose practice or acts are unethical as measured by the standards of the board or of any academy of medicine "unless such practice or acts are such as to implicate the laboratory in any criminal offense," declared Attorney General Edward C. Turner in an opinion given to Dr. John E. Munger, state health director.

In a ruling, given to Prosecuting Attorney Seth Paulin, Painesville, Turner held that "a village council may adopt police sanitary and other similar regulations and the proper municipal officers may enforce them within the territorial limits of the municipality including a township park controlled by township trustees."

"Township trustees may adopt by laws, rules and regulations for the purpose of controlling and regulating the use of such park and for the protection of all things therein but have no authority to permit things to be done which would violate the police, sanitary and other similar ordinances legally adopted by the village or to make rules or regulations contrary thereto," declared Turner.

FORMER XENIAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

Word of the death of Arthur Hartwell, 62, former Xenian, real estate operator, Birmingham, Ala., who died after a short illness at his home in that city, has been received here.

Mr. Hartwell had been Birmingham manager of the Judson Bradley Co., Detroit, and had resided in Birmingham since 1911.

Born in Selma, O., he graduated from the mechanical engineering department, Ohio State University, in 1888. Shortly after he became connected with the Westinghouse Electric Co., as sales manager of the Pittsburgh branch. He later became general sales manager with offices in Chicago, and remained with the Westinghouse Co. for fifteen years.

After leaving the Westinghouse Company he was associated with the Sterling Varnish Co. of Pittsburgh; the Detroit Insulated Wire Co.; and the Herreshoff Motor Co., Detroit.

He was married in 1892 to Miss Alice Moodie, Columbus, O., who survives him with two daughters and one son, Mrs. Daniel Hayes.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Three-fourths cup granulated tapioca, half teaspoon salt, three and a half cups boiling water, one cup figs, half cup brown sugar.

Cook tapioca, salt and boiling water together until clear. Add figs to the tapioca with the sugar. Cook five minutes, pour into a wet mold, chill and serve with cream.

DATE PUDDING
Half cupful flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, half teaspoonful salt, one cupful nuts, one cupful dates, one cupful sugar, two eggs.

Mix and sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cut the nuts and dates into pieces and add with the sugar. Stir in the egg yolks and fold in the beaten egg whites. Bake in a small bread pan in a slow oven forty minutes. Serve hot with whipped cream. As the flavor improves with age this pudding may be kept on hand for emergencies, and may be reheated by steaming or may be served cold.

The Theatre

One of the screen's great gifts to the public is the history lessons contained in such pictures as "The Overland Stage," the Ken Maynard starring feature for First National coming to the Bijou Friday and Saturday.

This impressive production shows one of the really great events in the conquest of America, the linking of the stage coach lines from East to West. The celebration of this historical event was recently reproduced on a massive scale at the site of its occurrence, Deadwood, S. D., and the Maynard company journeyed there to film it as part of their epic.

Some of his triumphs came in "The Argyle Case," "Jim Bludso," and "That Man And I." His sartorial elegance and his looks—he was called the handsome man on the American stage—won him numerous nicknames, among them "Beau Brummel." His addresses before the curtain were considered extremely witty.

Hilliard's first marriage terminated in divorce. His second wife, Mrs. Nellie B. Whitehouse Murphy died in 1914. His third matrimonial venture was with Mrs. Olga Everard Williams, daughter of James Everard, brewer. She survives him.

WILLIAM EVANS DIES AT FAIRFIELD

William Evans, 74, died at his home in Fairfield at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

He has been a resident of that village for a number of years. Surviving is his widow, Mrs. Irene Evans; two sons, John, Cleveland, O., and Russell, at home; and one daughter, Mrs. Helen Hitchcock, East Cleveland, Ohio.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Burial will be made in the Fairfield Cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. WILLIAM PENDELL

Mrs. Zora Evelyn Pendell, 62, wife of William Pendell, passed away at her home at Maple Corner, Wednesday night at 10:30 o'clock.

Besides her husband, she leaves

the following children: Nathan, Xenia; Mrs. Sarah Ellen Thompson, Seaman, O.; Mrs. Vina Evelyn Liston, Xenia; and Miss Faye Pendell, at home. Three children preceded her in death.

The following brothers and sisters, also survive: Lafe Newman, Peebles, O.; John Newman, Xenia; Mrs. Mary Walker, Jamestown and Mrs. Sadie Riley, Reardon, O.

Funeral services will be held at Locust Grove Cemetery, Adams County, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, with interment there.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:
The entrance of America into the World war finds Phillip Wynne Tracy IV suffering from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natalie Jones had had a child's engagement, which was objected to by both Mrs. Tracy and Mr. Jones.

Mrs. Tracy sends Phil a letter of introduction to Maria Tennis, the daughter of her friend, who lives near the training camp to which Phil has been sent. Maria, in her zeal to do her bit, offers her services to the "Y."

Phil's regiment is ordered back to New York, presumably bound for France. In New York he meets Natalie and, their love flaming anew, they plan to be married. The immediate departure of the regiment, however, prevents this.

After a miserable voyage, Phil finds himself in France and the regiment is soon ordered to the front. Almost immediately Phil (although Rod wanted to go) is detailed on an extremely dangerous mission in quest of military information. Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXXVII FOR VALOR ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE

SOMEHOW the lieutenant and Phil got across the Marne, but it was worse on the other side. Phil did not think it humanly possible, even though he had watched it earlier from the outpost through his glasses, for so much killing to have gone on that day.

There were dead men partially in the water. There were men who weren't dead, but dying, who called to them as they squirmed by; there were men dead in holes they had dug into the hillside to protect themselves, and there were dead men flung sprawling out in the open.

A French sergeant spoke to them and Phil, whose French by now was pretty good, told him that they were Americans and wanted to find out who held the town on the left.

With hardly a word he escorted them—also on his belly—through the adjacent wheat field, which was strung with barbed wire entanglements.

Finally, after what seemed to Phil an eternity, they reached a round fountain base. Evidently before this time of bloodshed began this tiled facility in which the men were sitting had been filled with the water of the fountain—now it was blood-stained and dry. It was a part of the ruins of the old chateau that showed only a pile of stone and mortar in the near distance.

Sitting in this fountain base Lieutenant Dolan and Phil found six French officers, whose faces told him that they felt they had not only lost the day's battle, but that it would only be a question of time when the hated Boche would cross the Marne and then go on to their beloved Paris, and it seemed to him that these living men, in their despair, were more horrifying than the dead ones he had passed such a little while before.

From them the two Americans learned that their countrymen did hold the town.

That morning the Americans and this company of French soldiers Phil had seen so slaughtered, had met the Germans and captured it, and all day long the Boche had tried to take it back.

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV asked himself if any country, let alone a town, was worth that carnage and resultant despair.

Lieutenant Dolan, asking details, learned there were 14 men and six officers left out of a company of 300.

Phil heard someone digging a trench nearby, and the sergeant, as if interpreting his look, said: "We have no time for graves. The men will just pile them in."

Dolan brushed his arm across his eyes and started back without a word. Phil followed.

Ultimately they reached the river. It was dark by now. All along the banks the star shells were turning the night into a white-noise glare, which once in a while would die down only to start up again more brightly than before.

They found the bridge and started across. Phil was ahead.

ALL of a sudden it was as though someone had started a type writer close to him. The machine runners had found them in the shell's glare.

Behind him Dolan called: "Tracy, you will report what we have learned if I don't get back."

"I will sir," said Phil, not knowing that Lieutenant Dolan had received his command to go west.

The house door on which Phil was lying, sank beneath him.

"They have blown the bridge out, lieutenant," he shouted. "We'll have to swim for it." And not knowing that Lieutenant Dolan was beyond hearing, he started out.

"Everything on earth is hell just now. Good night, buddy."

The machine gun bullets on the water hissed and skipped around him as though the Germans, aware that he had information, were determined that information should never get to the American headquarters.

Almost in a state of collapse, at last Phil felt the reeds along the shore. His stomach touched the marshy loam and the acrid smell of the gas-filled earth came to him again.

Something like a bee stung him on the shoulder.

He choked and spat out what he thought was a mouthful of queer tasting water. Then there came a moment when he realized that he had been hit and that Lieutenant Dolan had not come through. He absolutely lost control of himself.

Someone must get the information to headquarters. As usual, he thought of Rod. He pulled himself up the bank with his one arm, and shrieked, "Rod!" and mercifully fainted.

Three days later he awakened in a hospital back of the lines. He was in a bed, with sheets upon it. He was clean and a woman in a spotless white dress with a red cross on her cap, was bending over him.

He did not know how he had gotten there—he didn't realize what pain and suffering his unconscious condition had spared him. He only knew that he was more comfortable than he had been for months, even if he did find it hard to breathe.

As memory came back to him, he began to question. "Did headquarters get the information? How did I get here? Did they find Lieutenant Dolan's body? What happened to me? How did I get out?"

The sympathizing nurse told him that he had been found with another American boy, at the water's edge. He was underneath the body of that other boy, who was completely rigid, with machine gun fire.

Phil had no intuition. It was harder for him to breathe even, than before.

He didn't want to, but he had to ask who it was. He was almost sure he knew. Finally he made himself inquire. "Was that other man Lieutenant Dolan?"

"No. I do not think so."

"Who was it?"

"Do you really want to know?"

"Yes," Phil answered.

"I'll have to look it up," she said, pitying, and disappeared through the door. She came back soon and said: "His name was Rodney Maxwell."

Phil closed his eyes, and with a groan he turned his head toward the wall. A crimson trickle stained the pillow.

"Oh, you've opened your wound again," said the nurse.

Phil had lost consciousness.

It was more than a week afterward that a French officer stopped by the side of the bed and pinned the croix de guerre on Phil's shirt just over his heart, and left a citation on the bed which told that even in his unconscious state he had managed to bubble the information asked for—information for which he had been wounded and Lieutenant Dolan killed; information which had caused the death of his best friend, Rodney Maxwell.

ALL this came to Phillip as the officers stooped to kiss him on both cheeks, and he was met with such a volley of oaths and abuse that

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles don't know that quick and permanent relief can be accomplished with internal medicine. Cutting or any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will not remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in many, many cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Sayre's Drug Store today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you.

Here's Real Relief From Neuritis

In 24 to 48 Hours Pains Are Often Relieved and You Get Rest and Comfort Again.

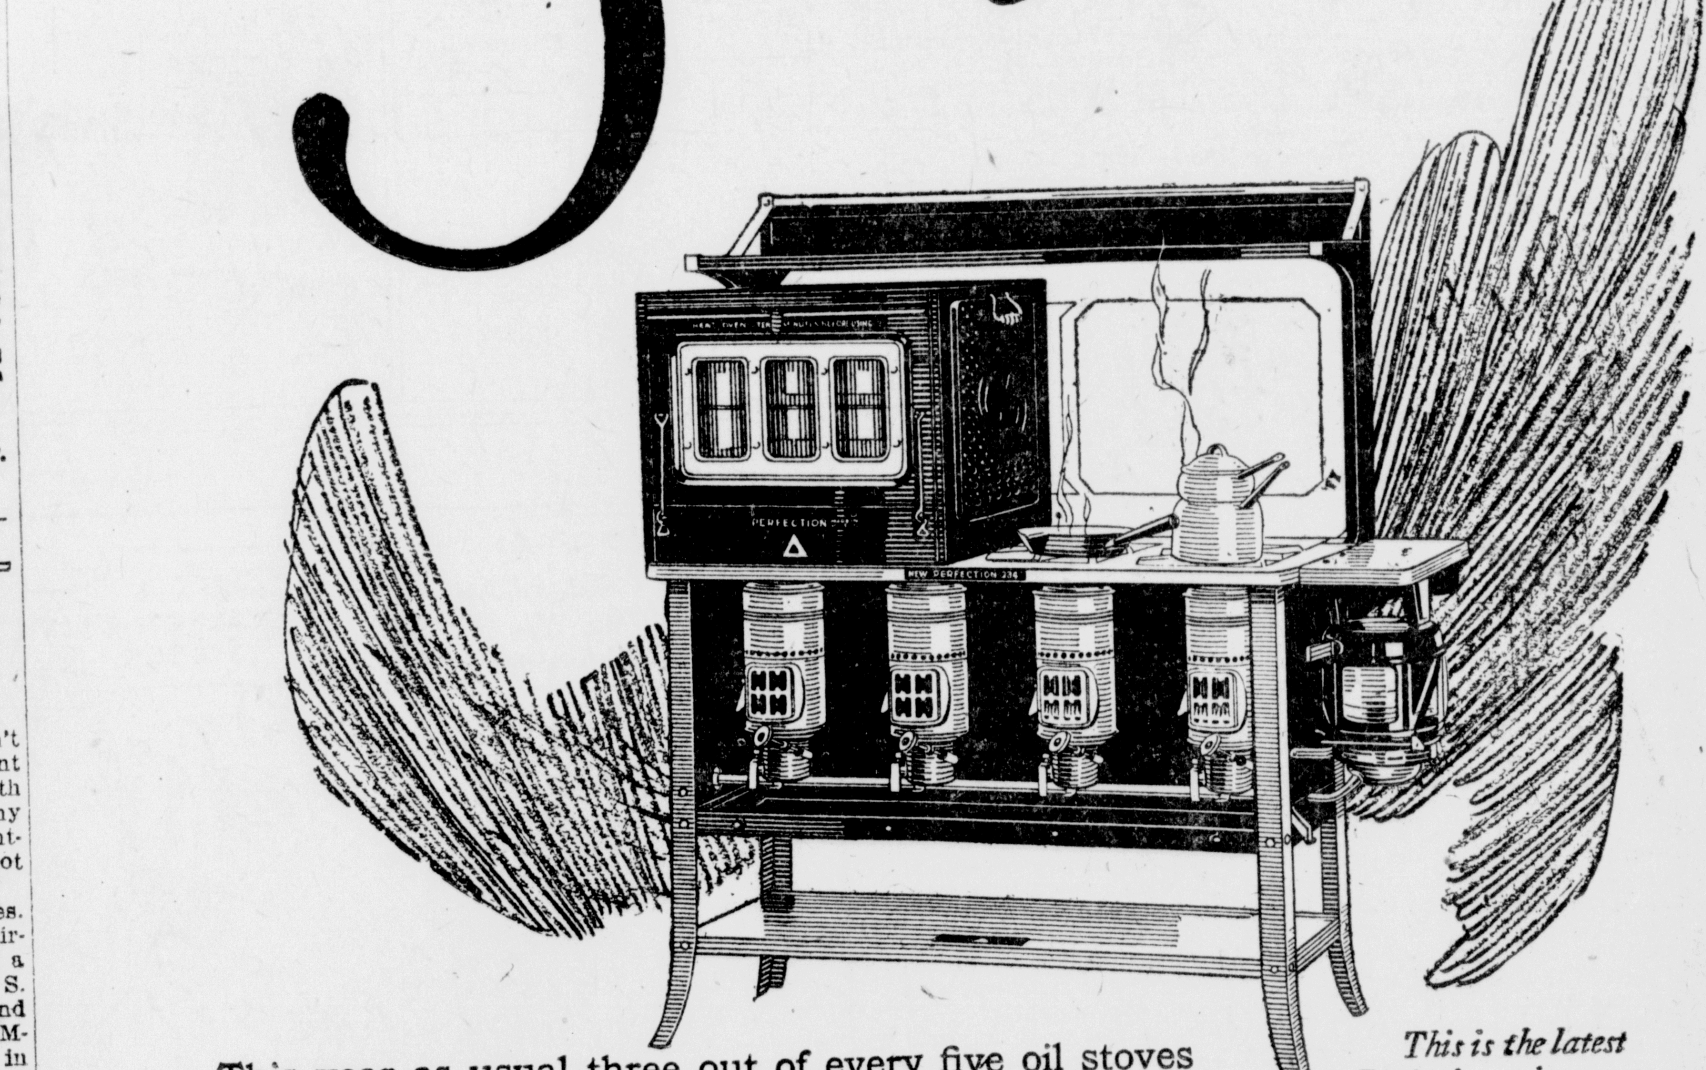

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that rob a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

Those are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only partially relieve.

The safest and most efficient way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenburh Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and in about 24 hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced if not almost banished those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more or until you are satisfied with results.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your Neuritis is in the shoulder, arm, neck or legs, Allenburh Special Formula No. 2 should give you speedy relief. Sayre's Drug Store or any good druggist will be glad to supply you.

ARREST EX-CANTON POLICE CHIEF

HE'S AMAZED

"I can't understand it," said S. A. Lengel, former Canton police chief, when he was arrested on an indictment returned by the grand jury charging him with first degree murder in connection with the death last summer of Don Mellett, Canton publisher. Lengel is the fifth indicted for the crime.

HUNDREDS IN PERIL; TRAIN WRECKS CARS

Porters Prevent Panic As Engine Plows Into Sleepers

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 9.—One hundred or more passengers were hurled from their berths early today when the New York Limited, a crack night express of the New York Central Railroad, crashed head-on into two Pullman passenger cars, filled with Rochester passengers, stationed on a siding here waiting to be attached to Boston Express 46. Several persons were slightly bruised but none was seriously injured.

Prompt work on the part of Pullman porters, who remained in their cars and reassured the passengers, averted a panic. All the passengers in the Rochester Pullmans were shaken up and about forty of them required medical attention. Railroad physicians administered to them and found that, beyond bruises and slight lacerations, none of them was seriously hurt.

Many of the passengers on the limited were also thrown to the floor by the impact. The two Rochester Pullmans were driven nearly fifty feet by the collision. Cries of the passengers went up on all sides. Many of the passengers rushed for the exits in night attire. The porters, however, quickly calmed them.

An investigation this morning indicated, it was stated, that the wreck was probably due to an error on the part of a yardman who threw a wrong switch. It was regarded as fortunate that the limited was making slow time when the impact occurred.

The rear Pullman of one of the Rochester Pullmans was considerably damaged.

The wreck occurred shortly before 1 a. m. after an hour's delay, during which time the wreckage was cleared away, the New York limited backed out and proceeded toward its destination. The limited was bound from Cleveland to New York.

REJECTED SUITOR BLAMED FOR MURDER

WILMINGTON, Del., June 9.—Infuriated because his attentions had been rejected, John Bove, 60, shot and killed Mrs. Forlini, 38, in the bedroom of her home here early today and attempted to kill himself by firing a bullet into his brain.

Bove was rushed to the Delaware Hospital in a dying condition. Mrs. Forlini died almost instantly from a bullet wound in her head.

CHAMBERLIN MAY CIRCLE GLOBE

FLYER BELIEVES HE COULD CIRCLE WORLD ON NON-STOP TRIP

Americans Consider Hearst $100,000 Offer To Fly Back

BERLIN, June 9.—A non-stop flight around the world is now the aim of Clarence A. Chamberlin, who has accomplished one of the greatest feats in aviation in his flight from New York to Germany breaking all distance records. "If someone is willing to put up $2,000,000 for research work, I am convinced I would soon be able to produce a plane capable of a non-stop flight around the world," said Chamberlin today in an interview with the International News Service.

"That is a large order, but I believe that at the present rate of improvement in planes it could be done."

BERLIN, June 9.—Neither Clarence A. Chamberlin nor Charles A. Levine have reached a decision on the offer of William Randolph Hearst of $100,000 for a return flight across the Atlantic to New York in the Bellanca plane. They will not make a decision until they have consulted their wives, who are due here next week.

"Everything depends on whether our wives will let us fly back," said Levine today.

"The Hearst prize offer looks fine and I like the idea a great deal, although we didn't at first think of flying back. I would like to fly back but I can't decide immediately."

"I don't know, I can't say yet," said Chamberlin when questioned about the proposal. "I am submerged in technical problems and I will have to think over the possibilities and study the topographical details. We zig-zagged all over Germany and the eastern Atlantic coming over and I don't want to do it again. I must study the maps and determine the best routes."

Both Chamberlin and Levine said they realize the magnitude of being the first to accomplish a non-stop flight to Europe and a non-stop flight return to America and that the chances of accomplishing such an achievement occupy most of their thoughts now.

BERLIN, June 9.—The German admiration for the American trans-Atlantic fliers, Chamberlin and Levine, fails to diminish.

Crowds gathered about the American embassy today and voiced loud demands that the fliers make an appearance, and a near riot ensued when two American newspapermen, who resemble the fliers in stature, left the embassy.

Both Chamberlin and Levine appeared rather tired today after the embassy dinner last night, but they were out on another round of entertainment.

Foreign Minister Stresemann entertained them at luncheon today together with the entire staff of the American embassy, Secretary of State Schubert, and Ministers Koch and Curtius.

The Aeronautical Society gave them a tea and tonight the Minister of Transport is entertaining at dinner.

SUNDAY CREEK COAL MINES STILL IDLE

COLUMBUS, O., June 9.—Mines of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., largest operators in the Hocking coal fields, will not be opened June 15, under any conditions, it was announced here today by George K. Smith, secretary and acting general manager of the operating company.

Smith's announcement, followed reports of a mass meeting held Wednesday night at Corning when 1,000 miners and citizens heard union executives.

RADIOED PICTURE SHOWS FLYERS AT COTTBUS, GERMANY

This radioed picture is the first to arrive showing Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine immediately after their landing at Cottbus, Germany, in which they broke the propeller of the plane that had carried them from New York.

RUSSIA BLAMES ENGLAND

DECLARE "BRITISH HIRELINGS" TRIED TO MURDER LEADERS

Recount "Terrorist Acts"—50,000 At Public Meeting

MOSCOW, June 9.—A Soviet communique, issued today in connection with a demonstration of protest against the assassination of M. Wolkoff, envoy to Poland, alleged that "British hirelings recently came within an inch of assassinating Stalin, Rykov and Bukharin," the big three of the Moscow government.

According to the Soviet accusation an attempt was planned to bring about the downfall of the government through the assassination of its three most powerful leaders.

The communique declared that a group of "white" officers, who formerly served under Admiral Koltchak, and who "were in direct contact with the head of the consular department of the British mission in Moscow, plotted to dynamite the Kremlin and the great Moscow theater during a convention of peasants and workers."

The communique traced a series of "terrorist acts" against the Soviet government since 1925, which had been inspired outside of Russia.

After reciting details of numerous attempts at assassination the communique continued:

"Not one of these events had its roots in the Soviet Union. All were inspired on the outside and it is quite evident that England, intent upon the forcing of war, has been attempting to disrupt the peaceful relations between the countries."

It is estimated that 50,000 workers and public officials took part in a public demonstration against the assassination of M. Wolkoff last night. Mass meetings were held in front of the headquarters of the communist internationale and other public buildings when fiery speeches were made.

HUMAN GORILLA CARVES LETTER "K" SEVEN TIMES ON ACTRESS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 9.—Doris Dore, 21-year-old stage actress, was the victim of a gorilla-like fiend who early today used a razor blade to carve the letter "K" seven times on her body.

Miss Dore told police she was awakened by a knock at her apartment door. When she answered the summons she was overpowered by a giant of a man who held her helpless while he slashed the letter "K" on her forehead.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES WILL ESCORT LINDY'S SHIP TO PORT

First Trans-Atlantic Flyer Ready For Reception—Memphis Will Dock At Washington Saturday Morning

ON BOARD U. S. CRUISER MEMPHIS, June 9.—(By Radio to L. N. S.)—The United States government today began putting the finishing touches upon arrangements to greet Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, lucky young mail plane pilot who flew from New York to Paris, and who is coming home upon this warship.

The navy department asked the exact location of the Memphis in order to have the navy dirigible Los Angeles greet the craft at sea.

There has been modification of the program for destroyers to meet and escort the Memphis, according to radiograms from Washington. One of the six destroyers sent out to escort the Memphis will come up with the cruiser at dawn tomorrow morning and take off the films and "still" pictures taken aboard the Memphis, to rush them back to New York.

Another destroyer will leave the operating base at Hampton Roads today to bring Richard R. Blythe, a friend of Lindbergh's and the New York representative of the St. Louis committee which backed the flight.

Blythe will be brought on board the Memphis to consult with Lindbergh upon plans for his return to St. Louis, where a great reception awaits him. On the same destroyer will be a corps of newspaper reporters and photographers, but they will not be permitted to come aboard the cruiser.

This destroyer will return to Hampton Roads, but four other destroyers will meet the Memphis approximately fifty miles off the Virginia Capes about 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. They will later be joined by two others.

In addition to Blythe customs officials will come aboard the Memphis to prepare for the landing.

The Memphis is expected to reach Cape Henry at 4 p. m. Friday and to reach the Washington navy yard at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. Lindbergh will go ashore at once to be greeted first by his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, and then President and Mrs. Coolidge and a large delegation of officials.

Lindbergh is entirely ready for the "flood" which awaits him in America. He knows from the adulation and honors of Europe what to expect at Washington, New York, St. Louis and other cities he may visit immediately after his arrival. But he is "all set."

DE AUTREMONT BOYS ARRESTED IN OHIO; WANTED FOUR YEARS

Twins Sought For Train Robbery Are Traced By Letter

STEUBENVILLE, O., June 9.—The De Autremont twins, Ray and Roy, 27, sought all over the world for nearly four years, in connection with the holdup of a Southern Pacific Railroad passenger train and the killing of four of the train crew at Siskiyon, Oregon, October 11, 1923, were under lock and key today.

The notorious brothers were taken into custody here last night by federal authorities and local police. Ray was captured while at work in the local plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation. He admitted his identity and told where his brother Roy could be found. The officers then went to Roy's boarding house and placed him under arrest.

The twins were traced here through a letter written them by their equally notorious brother, Hugh, who was recently arrested in the Philippines. The pair had been here since January, both working in the mills under assumed names.

The three De Autremont brothers, pictures of whom have been displayed in every postoffice in the country, are alleged to have held up the Southern Pacific train in a tunnel. A mail car was dynamited and one mail clerk killed in the explosion. An engineer, fireman and brakeman were murdered. A huge sum of money was taken, but exact figures of the amount were not available here.

Government agents today refused to say what the amounts of reward totaled for the capture of the De Autremonts, but it is believed to be in the neighborhood of $25,000. The secret service men say they have obtained from the belongings of the two brothers, sufficient evidence to clear up the Oregon holdup.

SAPP ELECTED HEAD OF ROTARY CLUBS

OSTEND, Belgium, June 9.—Arthur Sapp, of Huntington, Ind., today was elected president of the Rotary International without opposition. The balloting lasted from 8 to 11 o'clock.

"I feel that the highest international honor has been conferred upon me," President-Elect Sapp told International News Service.

MURDER REPORTS IN ADSHEAD DEATH ARE OFFICIALLY DENIED

Officials Of Antioch Declare "Facts" In Story False

Statements contained in a sensationalized story hinting that George Frederick Adshead, 22, Antioch College student, whose body was recovered from the Little Miami River Sunday had met his death by murder rather than suicide, were denied emphatically Thursday by Antioch College officials.

The story, published in a Dayton newspaper Thursday, based its murder insinuations on reports of a missing ten pound note Adshead is supposed to have received from his parents in Stockport, Eng., before his disappearance May 27 and the alleged disappearance of an Antioch coed with whom the youth is said to have been friendly.

"Mystery" concerning the whereabouts of the girl was exploded when college officials announced that she had completed her term and returned to her home in Montana. The supposedly missing ten pound note never materialized, college officials say. Adshead received a fifteen pound note from his parents before his disappearance and it is on deposit with other funds of his in the Miami Deposit Bank, Yellow Springs.

Adshead disappeared May 27, but his absence was not discovered until May 31, after the holidays. Notes he left in his room indicated an intention to commit suicide which bore out previous threats he had made. The youth was in ill health and had been depressed, college officials say, and for that reason had been kept under surveillance.

When his body was found in the river it bore no marks other than those that might have been caused by being carried along in the stream more than a week. Drs. R. H. Grube and Paul D. Espey, Xenia, named by Coroner F. M. Chambliss to assist him in a post mortem examination, said death was due to drowning. When found, Adshead's wrists were fastened with a rope evidently to keep him from saving himself by swimming when he made his suicide attempt, and the belief that he had tied himself was further borne out by the fact that one wrist was fastened with a slip-knot and the length of the rope permitted him to draw his wrists eight inches apart.

Coroner Chambliss Thursday denied that he had found papers in the dead youth's pockets which, when examined, might shed light on the purported "mystery." College officials are incensed at publication of what they term a misleading story.

Denials of all of the purported "facts" on which any theory but suicide was based, were made Thursday by Dean Philip C. Nash. Inquest into Adshead's death will be conducted by Coroner Chambliss next Wednesday but is not expected to result in any verdict other than suicide.

The notorious brothers were taken into custody here last night by federal authorities and local police. Ray was captured while at work in the local plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation. He admitted his identity and told where his brother Roy could be found. The officers then went to Roy's boarding house and placed him under arrest.

LENGEL ACCUSED OF MURDER IN SLAYING OF EDITOR MELLETT

Fifth Man Indicted Consents To Early Trial Of Case

CANTON, June 9.—While Seranus A. Lengel, deposed Canton chief of police, was in Stark County Jail here today, awaiting arraignment on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Louis Mazer, indicted last fall as one of the Mellett conspirators, was to be sentenced.

Mazer, whose confession to his part in the plot to slay the young editor resulted in the conviction of Floyd Streitenberger and in turn the indictment of Lengel, has thrown himself on the mercy of the court. He is charged with first degree murder, but Common Pleas Judge A. W. Agler, before whom he is scheduled to appear today, probably will not give him a heavy sentence.

Lengel, snow-white haired, 65 year old former chief, who had only one more year to serve before he was eligible for pension, was indicted in his cell by W. Bernard Rodgers, young lawyer associated with the law firm with which former United States Senator Atlee Pomerene was identified here.

Rodgers may represent Lengel in the murder trial. He has been counsel for the aged chief in efforts which still are pending to force Mayor Stanford M. Swarts and the civil service commission to return him to his post.

Lengel is expected to be arraigned Saturday, although Prosecutor Henry W. Harter, Jr., had not decided on the exact date this morning. Harter decided, however, that he will demand a speedy trial, and suggested July 5, as a possible starting date.

"I'll be ready then too," Lengel said. "The sooner the better."

The ex-chief was stoic as he was served with the capias by Sheriff Ed Gibson late yesterday afternoon, shortly after the grand jury had returned the indictment. Gibson found his prisoner sitting on the front porch of his home.

"I've come to arrest you," Gibson said.

"Well I certainly can't understand it," Lengel replied.

"Yes, it's a pretty big blow, I guess," the sheriff observed. "It would be," the former chief retorted, "if I weren't innocent. But I'm not afraid."

Sometime Saturday Prosecutor Harter is scheduled to meet Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, in Mansfield to interview a man whose identity was not revealed, in connection with the Mellett investigation. Harter said, however, that the man is not a reformatory prisoner.

HAYS ATTACKED BY MOVIE EXHIBITORS

COLUMBUS, O., June 9.—Delegates to the convention of the motion picture theaters of America today were preparing to select a convention city, elect officers and adjourn at the final session today, following a spirited discussion of the merits of Will Hays' administration as "movie czar," which featured the annual banquet.

Led by Harry Reichenbach, Broadway theatrical press agent, a vigorous assault upon Hays' administration drew vigorous applause from a majority of the theater owners. Reichenbach charged Hays with discrimination, with yielding to private grudges against certain persons in directing the affairs of moviedom, and with rendering decisions influenced by "the power or wealth of interested parties, rather than by justice."

Reichenbach also attacked Hays for forbidding William Fox from filming Somerset Maugham's play "Rain" because of its alleged immorality, and later permitting Gloria Swanson to make the film, was cited by Reichenbach as an example of alleged discrimination.

WILL RECEIVE BIDS FOR STEEL COMPANY

BUYRUS, O., June 9.—Sealed bids for the Hadfield-Penfield Steel Company of Mansfield, Buyrus and Willoughby, valued at $3,000,000, were to be received at the Court House here late today, and delivered to the federal court at Cleveland where the sale is to be announced Saturday 9 a. m. A sale is insured it is said, as the sale has been underwritten by a surety company.

The sale, made on the order of the federal court at Cleveland is to settle government claims totaling about one and three quarter millions after the government forced the company into receivership several months ago.

TWO HUNDRED IDLE WHEN FIRE DESTROYS FACTORY IN PLANT

GALION, O., June 9.—More than a hundred men are out of employment here today as a result of the $250,000 fire which destroyed the entire plant of the Gallon Metallic Vault Company.

Fire fighting apparatus from Mansfield, Buyrus and Crestline was called after the fire was discovered at 1 a. m. today, and which burned until 7 a. m. The fire began in a small building of the plant and spread over a wooden factory bridge to the main brick structure.

EMERGENCY FLOOD DAM IS DYNAMITED

HOUMA, La., June 9.—The emergency dam thrown up in Bayou Black a week ago to protect Houma from flood waters was dynamited early today by a party of 200 enraged farmers. Four charges of dynamite completely wrecked the dam.

ANSONIA BANK IS ROBBED OF $45,000

GREENVILLE, O., June 9.—Today's checkup on the robbery of the First National Bank of Ansonia, near here, of late Wednesday, reveals that the three unmasked men escaped with approximately $45,000 in currency and $40,000 in liberty bonds.

Trace of the bandits was lost at Yorkshire, fifteen miles north-east of here, according to Darke County officials.

BIBLE THOUGHT

GENUINE PRAISE—Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me; and to him that ordereth his way aright will I show the salvation of God. Psalm 50:23.

PROFIT IN GOODWILL FLIGHT

Announcement that Major Dargue, commander of the recent good will flight round South America, will accompany a business man on a seven weeks' tour of the United States in the interest of South American commerce, shows that the government is awake to the possibilities of capitalizing on the recent flight.

That trip was more than a gesture of military preparedness or an air reconnaissance of the tropics. It was a gesture of good will, and if it paved the way for increased commercial relations between the two Americas, as Major Dargue's coming business trip would make it, the flight will prove itself to have been of immense value.

NOT ALL NONSENSE

That great railroad builder, James J. Hill, once asked for the secret of success, replied: "The ability to save money is the secret of all success. If you can save, you will succeed, if not you might as well give up now, the seed of success is not in you."

There are a goodly number of people still mightily taken with the idea that thrift is all nonsense. They wear themselves out trying to find some short cut to success. They yearn for large profits and quick returns. The saving habit appears too slow. The almost miraculous power of money to increase does not appeal to them. Yet the advice of men like Hill, and the life stories of similar leaders all hinge upon the ability to save, and go back to Franklin's wise axiom always to spend a little less than one earns.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, June 9.—Many suburbanites who commute to New York park their cars at the suburban station in the morning and ride home in them in the evening.

Ray Sisley, a fellow Mamaroneck, who, like myself, is driven to and from the station by the misuses, was prompted to remark the other morning:

"The kind of a guy I'd like to be is one of these big, two-fisted fellows who park their cars at the station and leave their wives at home without a car all day long. That's the way to treat a woman—if you can get away with it. I can't."

Then there are those envious fellows who take in only one morning newspaper, hog the paper at the breakfast table, and calmly walk off with it to finish reading it on the train.

And there is the fellow who can get away with calling his wife up at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and telling her he is bringing out a friend to dinner on the next train.

And there is the fellow who buys bootleg Scotch at $75 a case and puts up a squawk when his wife wants $15 for a new hat.

And there is the churchgoer who plays golf at a dollar a hole and observes the club rule against tipping the caddy.

And there is the brave fellow who wins $200 in an all-night poker session and tells his wife gruffly that he lost 40 bucks.

And there is the strong, silent man who sprawls across the seat of a crowded suburban train, with his arms outstretched, reading a newspaper, so that timid folk daunt summon up courage to sit down beside him.

And there is the lovable cuss who cuts out of traffic and races ahead of the line on the wrong side of the road at a 40-mile clip, forcing oncoming cars to slow down and draw toward the curb, when there is no cop around.

And there is the big business man who calls several office conferences of high-powered executives on successive days to thrash out the question as to whether it would be bad for her morale to grant an additional $2 in salary to an $18-a-week file clerk, who has asked for a raise after two years' employment.

On the Other Hand

There is the thoughtful and considerate woman who runs her husband into debt by living and dressing on a scale to impress her acquaintances.

And there is the woman who plays bridge all the afternoon and puts up an argument when her husband wants to join the boys in a little session of poker.

And there is the woman who just must go away to the seashore every summer, while her husband sweats in the city, and who complains to her husband that he never wants to be with her any more, whenever he puts in a Saturday afternoon at golf.

Here and there: One of the pathetic panhandlers of Broadway is a hop-head, whose addition to drugs has cost him fame, money and self-respect. Not so many years ago he was a matinee idol who was paid one of the highest salaries current in the theater at the time; and he lived sumptuously and spent freely. He lost out because, after he became a drug addict, he could not be depended upon for rehearsals or to show up for his part. Several times he "threw the show" by falling up his lines and acting crazily on the stage. He is now a hopeless wreck. A playwright, who wrote one of the biggest hits in the history of the

I heard a young college student last night speaking somewhat patronizingly of the professor under whom he is studying economics.

"He teaches economics," said the boy, "and yet he himself, is an economic failure. His salary is so small that his family have scarcely enough to eat."

Probably true enough, but it's never safe to assume that a man can't teach a subject, write about a subject, or discuss it intelligently just because he couldn't do the things he talks about.

I doubt if a more impractical or unbusinesslike man ever lived than old Adam Smith, whose inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations, probably makes him the father of political economy and founder of what we call science of business today.

He was an awkward, absent-minded Scotch professor, never engaged in business or trade in any way, who would have been incapable of conducting even a small notion shop. If you had asked any of his neighbors what kind of fellow he was, they would doubtless have said:

"Oh, he writes books but is hopelessly impractical."

They might have said the same thing about Darwin, who was thrown out of school for incompetence. Yet his Origin of Species, and Descent of Man, revolutionized the thought of the world.

It is easy to exaggerate the importance of the practical man and to minimize the value of the theorist. A man actually engaged in business might have too many petty prejudices, and be too close to his subject to see it in proper perspective.

During the war, foremen from big factories, accustomed to handling men, had plenty of opportunity to reach places of command, but on the whole they did not make as creditable a showing as did inexperienced young men who had been in college studying mere theory.

Many an eminent and useful dramatic critic has never been able to write a successful play. William Archer's melodrama, The Green Goddess, did not come until many years after his reputation as a critic had been well established.

How to Achieve Beauty

LEG EXERCISES THAT DEVELOP SYMMETRY

Leg symmetry like symmetry of any other part of the body can be achieved by the faithful and consistent practice of certain exercises.

One of the greatest problems of the present moment in regard to leg symmetry is the matter of knees. Knees are so much in evidence these days because of the continued vogue of the ever increasingly abbreviated skirts, that knees which are too large and which give a dwarfed appearance to the calves of the legs, offer a real beauty problem.

The size of knees can be materially reduced by the faithful practice of the following exercises:

Stand with feet together, body erect—swing the left leg backward, letting the toes touch the ground as though you were stepping backward. Put all your weight on the left leg. Then lift the right foot from the floor, slightly bending the knee. With the full weight on the left leg slowly raise and lower your body six times by bending and straightening the left leg. Reverse the movement and as you become more adept in doing the exercise increase the number to times you practice it.

Another exercise that is recommended for the reduction of the knees is as follows:

Stand with hands on hips and place the right foot about eighteen inches ahead of the left, then sink on the left knee. Return to original position and bring the left foot ahead of the right and bend to the right knee. This should be repeated several times.

For knees that are bony and awkward instead of soft and white, the above exercise will be good from a muscular standpoint, but they should also be massaged every night with a good rich nourishing cream, such as you would use for plumping your hands or face.

Another exercise which is good, giving the knees more symmetry and which is also good for reducing superfluous flesh around the hips is the following:

Lie flat on the floor at right angles to a wall with legs parallel to the wall, body relaxed and arms loosely extended at sides. Bend left knee, letting foot slide down wall and the weight of the leg carrying the knee to rest against abdomen and chest.

Then extend the left knee forcibly, pushing foot up wall, heel leading until back of knee is against the wall. Repeat with right leg and alternate twenty to thirty times. Done with zest this exercise will also reduce superfluous abdominal flesh.

The calves of women's legs have a tendency to become knotted and muscular from the constant wearing of high heels, and it is the calf of the leg which is most seriously affected when we stand on our toes as we are constantly doing when we wear high heels. A very fine exercise for developing the calves is to kneel on left knee, arms at sides, fingertips touching the floor. Then proceed to throw the left leg back as far as possible, supporting the weight on the right foot. Then quickly change your position so that right leg is bent under you.

To reduce the lower leg and ankle try the following:

Stand with hands on hips, weight on the right foot, touch the left toe on the floor about twelve inches in front of the right, keeping both knees straight. Rise high on the toes and switch the weight to the left foot, finishing with the weight on the left foot, while the right toe points backward. Return to starting position. Repeat ten to twenty times. Then do the exercise over again, this time with the weight on the left foot.

Sit in a chair and cross your right knee over the left. While holding legs still make a complete circle with the toe of the right foot, moving it first sideways then up and down. Repeat vigorously ten times. Cross the left knee over the right foot and repeat with the left foot.

Are you one of those unfortunate ones who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs, then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines, but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From your toes to your head S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it where a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"Whether or not this is a wholly civilized age may be open to discussion; but that it is a business age is not subject to doubt or debate. If war violates the principles of sound business, if it shows no profit to either party to the conflict, if it brings nothing but disaster to the individual nations concerned and demoralization to the business of the world, it is doomed to die."—Wm. Randolph Hearst.

"I think there will probably be a war worse than the great war within a century, and it is perfectly possible that it may prove fatal to our particular type of civilization. At the present time the main thing science can do is to make them unprofitable for the victors as well as the vanquished. The only kind of science that can stop them is psychological, but psychology is still in a very chaotic stage and does not yet deserve the title of science."—Professor J. B. S. Haldane.

"The antithesis between science and religion is the antithesis between the seen and the unseen, between spirit and matter. Science cannot apply its yardstick to religion which is intangible and elusive. Pursue evolution to its logical limit, and it obliterates the distinction between man and beast, and leaves man with no sense of responsibility, redemption and immortality."—Professor Carl Bauer.

"Modern methods of scientific research are being applied to the scourge of war, just as they are applied to the scourge of cancer, and all this in itself is a hopeful sign. The twentieth century must work with twentieth century tools, whether the effort be directed toward increasing the sum of human enjoyment or toward diminishing man's inherited instincts for violence and conflict. These modern scientific methods are now, somewhat belatedly, being actively applied to the scourge of Bolshevism. I believe that the people in every country have got to choose between order and anarchy, between honesty and thievery, between everyday virtue and crime."—Myron T. Herrick.

Do you know what worry means? I fancy there are few Americans who have reached maturity who could not give you a chapter about it from their own experience. It may be a disease, it may be merely a tendency to disease, and if it is indulged in to any great extent for any considerable period of time it is pretty sure to eventuate in disease, frequently insanity, not infrequently in consequences which are serious or even fatal.

There is with many an inherited tendency to worry, with others the tendency is acquired, both are bad.

When a child, boy or girl, especially a girl, has a father or mother or both who have been nervous, hysterical, dissipated, vicious, it is the most natural thing in the world that their children should be fretful, ill-natured, suspicious and given to worry.

They worry about their studies, about their games, about their standing among their companions, about many things by which a healthy, normal child is not disturbed and when the danger period of adolescence and puberty arrives this worrying tendency takes a fresh start, as it were, and becomes fixed.

Such people may develop into acute, capable men or women so far as the work of life is concerned, but they are forever handicapped by this evil tendency and life becomes a burden to them.

It is young people of this kind from whose ranks many of the suicides come. How necessary, how imperative it is therefore that they should be placed under influences which will encourage self-control and mental equilibrium.

The acquired tendency to worry comes later in life. It results from severe application to work, from insufficient sleep, from misfortune, from disappointment, sorrow, sickness, and a host of other causes.

People often say to such individuals, "Don't Worry! Ah, it is easy enough to give such advice, but it takes a strong man or woman to profit by it. Blessed is the man or woman who, in such cases and conditions, has power enough to keep this demon down and drive him out."

Of course good, wise friends and advisers are of great help in such matters but the bulk of the work must be done by the individual himself.

It is like the drink habit or the dope habit; unless your will power is efficient, you are not likely to win.

I know of no recipe for producing will power in those in whom it is lacking.

One thing we can be thankful for and that is that a large proportion of the things we worry about exist only in the imagination.

I often think of the story of St. Jerome who lived to be 120 years old. Some one said to him when he was near his end:

"Father, you have lived a long time and had various experiences; what do you consider the most important thing in all this long period?"

After a few moments meditation, he replied: "So many of the evil things I have worried about have never come to pass."

May not this be a helpful suggestion to you, and you and you?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

MRS. J. J. A.: My mother, age 58, is very stout and has sores on her thighs which are very painful. She had her teeth removed, thinking that the sores might proceed from infection in them, but the sores are worse than ever, and the tissues hard and inflamed. I would be glad if you could offer any advice.

Answer.—It is possible that these are varicose ulcers, due to diseased veins, which are common with fleshy people, after middle life especially those who have worked hard and have been constantly on their feet. If that should be the case they are often healed by the persistent use of lunar caustic, the sores being dressed and the limbs bandaged every day. It is also very important to have a free movement of the bowels every day.

ANTIOCH STUDENTS GIVEN SILVER CUPS FOR AQUATIC FEATS

Two silver loving cups were awarded to Claire Dowler and Elizabeth Clarke, individual winners of the third annual aquatic meet of the "B" division of Antioch College at M. R. Grinnell's Park near Yellow Springs Wednesday afternoon. More than 500 people were assembled for the swimming carnival, one of the largest crowds ever to witness the events. Fast competition was provided for the entrants. Miss Clarke was presented with the girl's cup, offered by Mr. Grinnell, for scoring eighteen points. Her nearest competitor was Charlotte Burton, Springfield, who had fourteen points to her credit.

Dowler was awarded the men's cup when he made twenty points. Harold Class was a close second with eighteen and these two swimmers had practically a monopoly on the boys' events.

The feature of the program was the 200-yard relay race won by the Hanchett Hall team over the Baker House quartet, which finished second. Members of the winning team were Mansfield, Rope, Leiserson, and Underhill. Baker House was represented by Whitmore, Reel, Lakin and Mainland.

Class and Dowler had the honors in the 25, 50, 100 and 200-yard free style races for men all to themselves. Class finished first in the 200-yard race, while Dowler won the 25 and 50 yard events, but this order was reversed in the two longer swims, Dowler coming in first with Class runnerup.

Class also won the 25-yard back stroke but this was nullified when Dowler captured the breast stroke event. The spirited competition of these two students for highest individual honors was the feature of the meet.

In the girls' rowing race, Peggy Sharp triumphed over Charlotte Burton, and in the same event for men, Rope defeated Allen. George Lakin carried off first place in the diving event while second honors went to Darmon Whitmore.

Robert Rope, student was in charge of the swimming carnival.

ANTIOCH COLLEGE SENIORS TO OFFER CLASS PLAY FRIDAY

Written by three members of last year's graduating class, "Horace Mann," a play in three acts depicting the tragedy of the life of the noted educator, and an epilogue, will be presented by the Antioch Players as the Antioch College senior class play Friday night, June 24 at 9 o'clock on the east steps of the college.

The play was written by Miss Naomi Brackett, Miss Dorothy Palmer and H. Lee Jones, but production was delayed until this year due to the time necessary for preparation of the play and gathering of materials for the pageantry.

A dialogue, which reproduces conversations that are said to have actually taken place, furnishes background for the play. These conversations are as reported by early students of the college, who have contributed material based on the life of the college's first president.

The story opens with the momentous day on which Horace Mann, responsible for the tax-supported school system in Massachusetts, was offered the nomination for governor of that state on the same day he received an offer to become president of Antioch College. The educator is shown with Mrs. Mann while making his decision, wondering whether to take the course of reforming the world through political intrigue or to take his stand beside youth and work out the ideals of education in the new country of the West. He decides in favor of youth and comes to Antioch.

A pageant of opening day when Mann startled visitors with the declaration in his inaugural address is presented in the second act. Even on this great occasion, financial troubles, that are soon to harass him, creep in.

The third act provides the visit of Ralph Waldo Emerson, whose essays were looked upon with horror by conservatives of that day. Emerson commends Mann's work and advises him to continue it in the face of charges of "higher criticism and ungodliness." The play closes with Mann full of great ideas and ideals but able to transfer only a small portion of them to the world because he is exhausted from criticism, disputes, and financial difficulties. The greatest dramatic moment is reached at the end when death brings the production to a close and Mann collapses, as he uttered his best known words, "and I beseech you, my friends, be ashamed to die until you have won some victory for humanity."

WILBERFORCE WILL GRADUATE THREE HUNDRED HERE JUNE 16

Three hundred young men and women graduates, said to be the largest graduating class in the history of Wilberforce University, will receive their diplomas and certificates at the sixty-fourth annual commencement exercises, Thursday morning, June 16, with United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, delivering the commencement address in Jones' Auditorium.

President Gilbert H. Jones expects the commencement will be largely attended by distinguished educators from different sections of the country. Already many of the old graduates have arrived and are on the campus to take part in an Alumni business meeting, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock to adopt plans for raising $200,000 as an endowment fund.

The opening exercises for the week will start Sunday morning at 10 o'clock when Bishop W. A. Fountain, A. M. D. D., Atlanta, Ga. will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. John A. Hill, Louisville, Ky., is to speak to the religious societies and Greek letter organizations. At 8 o'clock in the evening the graduating class from Payne Theological Seminary will attend in a body and Rev. J. C. Caldwell, Nashville, Tenn., for a number of years secretary of the Allen Christian Endeavor Society of the A. M. E. Church, will deliver the annual sermon.

RESERVES FIGHT IN DEFENSE OF LEAGUE LEADERSHIP HERE

First place in the Buckeye League will be at stake when the Xenia Reserves and Dayton Police meet in a double-header at Washington Park Sunday afternoon.

A twin bill was made necessary because the Reserve-Police game a month ago was postponed because of rain and it was decided to play the contest off as a part of a double-header.

Not having met this season, both the Reserves and Police have been undefeated in the league and a double defeat for either team means elimination from the race.

Should the rival clubs break even in the two games a tie will still exist and the league championship will probably not be decided until the third and deciding meeting between the two teams later in the season.

The first game will start about 2:30 o'clock and the aftermath will be limited to seven innings.

Russ Payton will hurl one of the games with Cyphers probably working in the second.

ATTORNEY GENERAL AND GOVERNOR TEST INDIANA'S DRY LAW

INDIANAPOLIS, June 9. To save the lives of their loved ones, Governor Ed Jackson and Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom of Indiana have rendered themselves liable to imprisonment through violation of the Wright bone-dry law, the most severe in the country.

That fact was brought out in a remarkable letter Gilliom wrote to Governor Jackson urging him to the next legislature amendment of the State liquor law to permit the use of whiskey for medicinal purposes. One pint of whiskey was ordered by physicians for Mrs. Jackson, wife of the governor, who was dying from pneumonia. The governor went to Gilliom, who informed him that there was no lawful way to obtain the liquor, according to the letter.

But the governor's desire to obey the law was less than his love for his wife. He got the liquor from Canada.

A similar method of "illegally" obtaining whiskey was utilized by Gilliom, who a year ago suffered the torture of a parent when his three sons were ill from pneumonia and typhoid fever.

But Frank E. Wright, author of the law, still maintains there is no necessity to lessen its severity. "Doctors have told me there is no medicinal quality in whiskey," he maintains stubbornly.

Gilliom's friend who supplied the liquor for his sick children after the physician had said it was necessary paid dearly for his act of generosity. A few days later he was arrested for having possession of liquor under the bone-dry statute.

"You and I procured the needed whiskey from friends who were secretly preserving it for just such anticipated emergencies in their own households, risking all the while, discovery and imprisonment, because of such mere possession," Gilliom wrote the governor.

"We had a natural right, indeed, a supreme duty, to save the lives of our dear ones by any means available, just as the lowliest and poorest citizen has a right equally precious to him and a duty no less compelling."

"No government and no law can justly interfere with that right and that duty."

Under the Indiana dry law, physicians are prohibited from prescribing whiskey even under the most desperate circumstances. Carrying liquor from place to place and giving it away and even possessing are crimes. Even the mere asking for liquor may be used as evidence of conspiracy to violate the law.

With the Indiana Anti-Saloon League adamant on changing a command of the celebrated prohibition statute and as fast growing body favorable to liberalization, Gilliom's letter was expected to be a factor in the 1928 gubernatorial campaign.

The soothsaying profession in Indianapolis has suffered a severe flow through a rather unfortunate guess by one of the women fortune tellers.

Representative Frank E. Wright, author of the bone dry law of Indiana, the most arid in the nation, was the subject of the guess when his son Harold, 18, went to consult the seeress.

"Ah, young man, I sympathize with your unhappy fate, your father is a hard drinker," was her stab at the occult.

"Why, he never took a drink in his life," the amazed young man replied.

Recovering a bit of her composure, the fortune teller said: "Perhaps yes; perhaps no; but someone is going to persuade him to take a drink."

YOUNG PUPILS GIVE PROGRESS PAGEANT AT ANTIOCH SCHOOL

Contributions of the various nations to the progress of the world were delineated in a "Pageant of Progress," presented by students of the Antioch School Junior high Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the school lawn.

The pageant showed the product of the year's work in various school departments. Each student wrote his own speech in the English department. Material for the speeches was obtained from social studies, costumes and banners were made in the arts and crafts department and standards were made by manual training students.

"Progress," central figure of the pageant, was portrayed by Betty Swing. With her were four contributors, "Art," Wilma Hilbur, "Science," Lincoln Matthews, "Agriculture," Myron Potter, and "Industry," Everett Jones.

Eleven nations represented were: "Early Peoples," Susan Hiff; "China," Leo Leiserson; "India," Katherine Kingsbury; "Greece," Ethel Hiff; "Italy," John Folk; "Japan," Harriet Cannon; "Great Britain," William Marshall; "France," Martha Collins; "Germany," Robert Nosker; "Russia," Albert Swing; and "United States," John Kennedy.

Each nation's episode had an interlude during which its songs, dances and national music, were given.

Miss Clara Hirst was in charge of music for the pageant assisted by Anne Carr and Dorothy Hilbur, of the high school department. The entire cast and chorus was composed of about sixty people, as students of the upper elementary group assisted in the interludes.

The pageant was worked out in accordance with the ideas of the students, themselves, and heads of the various departments involved co-operated in the presentation. Miss Winifred Matthews, of the college was consultant regarding costumes which students designed for their parts.

Two programs of piano music of many lands are to be given at the home of Miss Clara Hirst Saturday and Monday afternoons, incidental to the pageant of the progress of nations.

A tea and musical will be given at 4 p. m. Saturday with the following students assisting: Avery Leiserson, William Groves, Elizabeth Swing, Frances Morgan, Susan Hiff, Marjorie Fulton, Katherine Kingsbury, Harriet Cannon, Ethel Hiff and Lincoln Matthews.

Monday at 4 p. m., those taking part will be: Mary Anne Kingsbury, Sarah Leiserson, Josephine Lee, Curtis Nash, Waldon Matthews, Jerry Roach, Erma Nash, Gordon Matthews, Allen Roach, Ruth Leiserson, Constance Williams, Alathena Smith, Patti Frame, Jane Matthews and Manu Chatterjee.

plans laid for obtaining another pastor. As yet, no minister has been called by the church.

The pulpit committee that was elected by the church to recommend another pastor is composed of S. W. Guyton, chairman; William Maxwell, Harley Wolary, Mrs. Mary M. Meredith and Mrs. L. A. Wagner.

At the board meeting, the church expressed its deep regret of the loss of its pastor, who has been untiring in his efforts. Under the energetic and faithful leadership of the Rev. Mr. Brown, the work of the church has moved forward, a church official said Thursday.

"His helpful personality shall be greatly missed. The church has felt itself fortunate in having a pastor whose sermons were inspiring and spiritual. When he leaves Xenia, he goes with the best wishes of his many friends."

The resignation of the Rev. R. E. Brown, as pastor of the First Baptist Church, was tendered at the monthly business meeting of the church, Wednesday night. The resignation will be effective August 31, when the Rev. Mr. Brown will close five years of service as pastor of the local church.

The Rev. Mr. Brown's plans for the future have not been disclosed although he announced he will continue in the ministry.

The resignation was not a surprise to the board, as the Rev. Mr. Brown notified the advisory committee of the church three weeks ago that he expected to leave, so that the committee had been confined to short stories pastored. As yet, no minister has been called by the church.

Wednesday evening.

Bert Crane, employee, on the Hoppings farm, succeeded in driving off the animal, which trampled Hoppings, fracturing several ribs, and bruising him about the body.

Mr. Hoppings had attempted to feed the animal, which had never before shown any disposition to viciousness, when it attacked him. His injuries are not thought serious but he is confined to his home.

Raymond Hoppings, farmer, near Spring Valley, narrowly escaped death or serious injury, when he was attacked by a bull on his farm,

SPECIAL BOTTLE CAPS

The Special Jersey Milk bottles are sealed with a double Sani-Seal cap, the outside cap entirely covering the mouth of the bottle so that there is no chance for milk to ooze out around the cap or for dust or foreign substance to reach the milk. It also protects the top of the bottle from any animal prowlers.

THE COST IS LOW

This milk — the finest that can be produced — comes to you at a cost only slightly above that of ordinary milk.

FROM A TUBERCULAR TESTED GREENE COUNTY HERD

All of our SPECIAL JERSEY MILK is produced by a herd of twenty-eight registered Jersey cows that have been carefully tested and pronounced free from any infection. This herd grazes in fine blue grass meadows within seven miles of Xenia. Every sleek animal is in perfect health and gives a fine flow of milk. Eight of this herd produce such abundant flow of milk that they are milked three times a day instead of the customary morning and evening milking.

AN OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY MAN IS IN CHARGE OF THE HERD

An Ohio State University dairyman has charge of the dairy and every detail about the barns and dairy is rigidly sanitary. This milk is produced in clean surroundings, handled with clean utensils, by clean people, and is delivered to you in perfect condition.

In line with their policy of always furnishing their patrons with the best and most up-to-date service that can be obtained, the DAIRY PRODUCTS COMPANY will start Friday, June 10th, the distribution of a

SPECIAL JERSEY MILK

This milk will be whole, raw milk from a specially inspected and tested registered Jersey herd and is guaranteed absolutely free from any tubercular infection.

13c PER QUART
7c PER PINT

You get this high grade milk just as it comes from the cow with all of the richness and freshness and with that delicious flavor that only the fresh, whole milk can have.

Because it is pure Jersey milk and is rich, yellow and brimming with butter fat, as only Jersey milk can be, it produces cream that is thick, golden, and wonderful for all purposes. Housekeepers know the economy, as well as the satisfaction, in using milk and cream of this kind.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

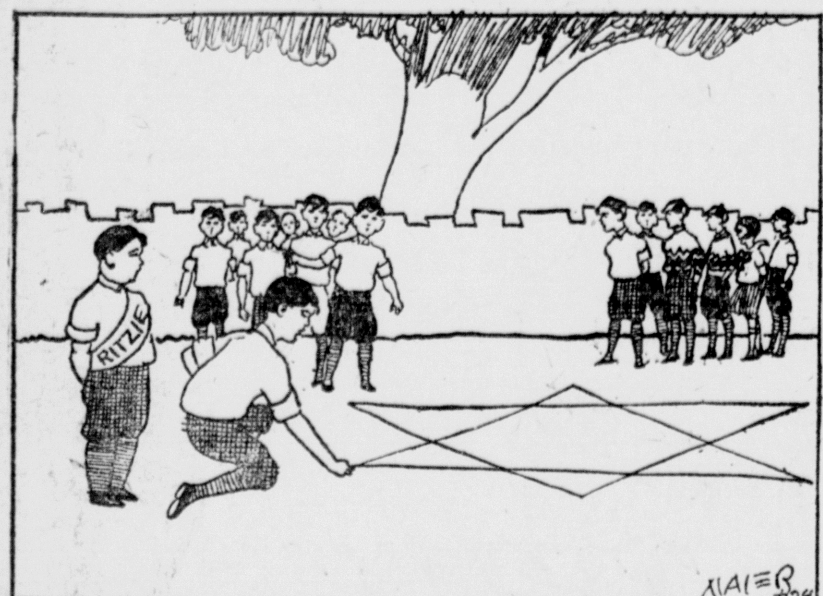

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Will their color defender become a Ritzie member? "As president of the Ritzie club, let me congratulate you, Bill Roscoe, on winning the Ritzie marble tournament." Marty was speaking in his most dignified voice. The situation was one that called for dignity, and the twins, Patsy and Betty Ann, the other four Ritzies, were sitting stiff as poker in their canvas chairs in the little carpenter shop. Bill, who was almost a stranger to them and had only come over to enter the Ritzie tournament, had won the first prize and was soon to match his skill in marbles against an enemy of the Ritzies. "Of course you realize," continued Marty, "that as winner of the Ritzie tournament you are now to play Max Mason's best marble player, with the Ritzie colors at stake. If you win, you will be initiated into the Ritzie club with high honors. If you lose, well, no one knows what will happen to us. It may be the end of the Ritzies. We're counting on you, Bill."

"Here are the Ritzie colors that you are to wear across your chest when you play the match game," Patsy said, as she handed him a wide ribbon band with white letters spelling the word Ritzie. Bill could find nothing to say but continue to look about in a dazed manner that struck fear in the hearts of the Ritzies. Was he the man to defend the Ritzie colors? He didn't seem to have the pep that the Ritzies were used to putting into things. Yet he had won the Ritzie marble tournament, and it had been understood beforehand that the winner should play Max's

The first round of play was a joke. Marty had told him where to shoot from, but wishing to show off, Bob had aimed at one of the farthest marbles instead of the closest one and though he had knocked it out of the ear, he lost his turn and gave a score of one to his opponent. Instead of winning praise from his audience as he expected, he received only laughter. "That's a good way to start off the game. Give a score to your opponent!" chided one boy. Seeing that it would be hopeless to ask him to play a game that man. So there was nothing to do but put their faith in him and hope for the best. "When does the game come off?" Bill finally managed to ask. "This afternoon at 4 o'clock," answered Marty. The fact that the big game was so close at hand did not seem to nerve the Ritzie color defender the least. Instead, he seemed to take on a more placid attitude, as if accepting the inevitable. The Ritzies were soon to learn that Bill was not to be easily excited. His slow and easy mannerisms may have been backed up with a fast beating heart and a worried mind, but Bill was not one to show it. He looked about at the members of the little Ritzie band as if there had never been a marble tournament and never would be one. The Ritzies decided to themselves that it was the carrying of his 125 pounds that made him so calm. A fat boy couldn't be expected to get excited over things, and so they tried to be content with his promise to "do his very best."

When he had donned his Ritzie ribbon and counted his trusty marbles, the Ritzies escorted him to the battlefield, with ill-concealed excitement. Neutral ground had been chosen for the big game, and when the Ritzies and their champion arrived they found the field filled with boys and girls. Max and his crowd were there, too, and Bob Taylor, the winner of the state championship, was practicing some trick shots. It seemed terrible to put up poor old Bill against such a crack marble player, and Marty was sorry that he had ever accepted Max's challenge to prove that the Ritzies were good sports. He tried to appear brave and marched to the center of the field and started to draw in the star which was to be used in the playing of the championship game, Old Jupe.

"What are you doing?" called out Max.

"I'm marking in the star that we use in the game of Old Jupe," answered Marty. He was about to explain that if Max hadn't been too high hat to come to the reading of the rules, he would have known all about it, but Tommy Walker saved him the trouble.

"You fellows think you know so much about marbles that you can't even come to the official reading of the rules for a new game. It'll serve you right if Bob gets all tangled up. We were there when Marty received your note saying that you wouldn't come, so we know that he gave you a chance to hear about Old Jupe."

Loud cheers followed Tommy's speech, and seeing that the crowd was against them, Max and his gang decided to face the music, and Bob Taylor entered the game without knowing the least thing about it.

The first round of play was a joke. Marty had told him where to shoot from, but wishing to show off, Bob had aimed at one of the farthest marbles instead of the closest one and though he had knocked it out of the ear, he lost his turn and gave a score of one to his opponent. Instead of winning praise from his audience as he expected, he received only laughter. "That's a good way to start off the game. Give a score to your opponent!" chided one boy. Seeing that it would be hopeless to ask him to play a game that he knew nothing about, Marty took pity on him and explained the rules of Old Jupe. He wouldn't have needed to officially, but the Ritzies weren't willing to be beaten by mere stupidity.

The game was started over again but Bob Taylor had lost his confidence. When you are playing for big stakes, it's not an easy thing to be laughed at and keep your nerve. His shots lacked punch and seemed to hesitate as if not quite sure of himself.

Bill, proudly wearing the Ritzies' colors, took his turns as calmly as if he were playing a practice game by himself, and there was no doubt but what his determined calmness was a big factor in unnerving Bob.

Bill had been leading with a score of 6 to 4 until Bob let go one of his famous plays and started sending marbles out of the star with a will. It began to look dark for the Ritzie champion, and if he would have lost his courage at this sudden onslaught all would have been over for the Ritzies.

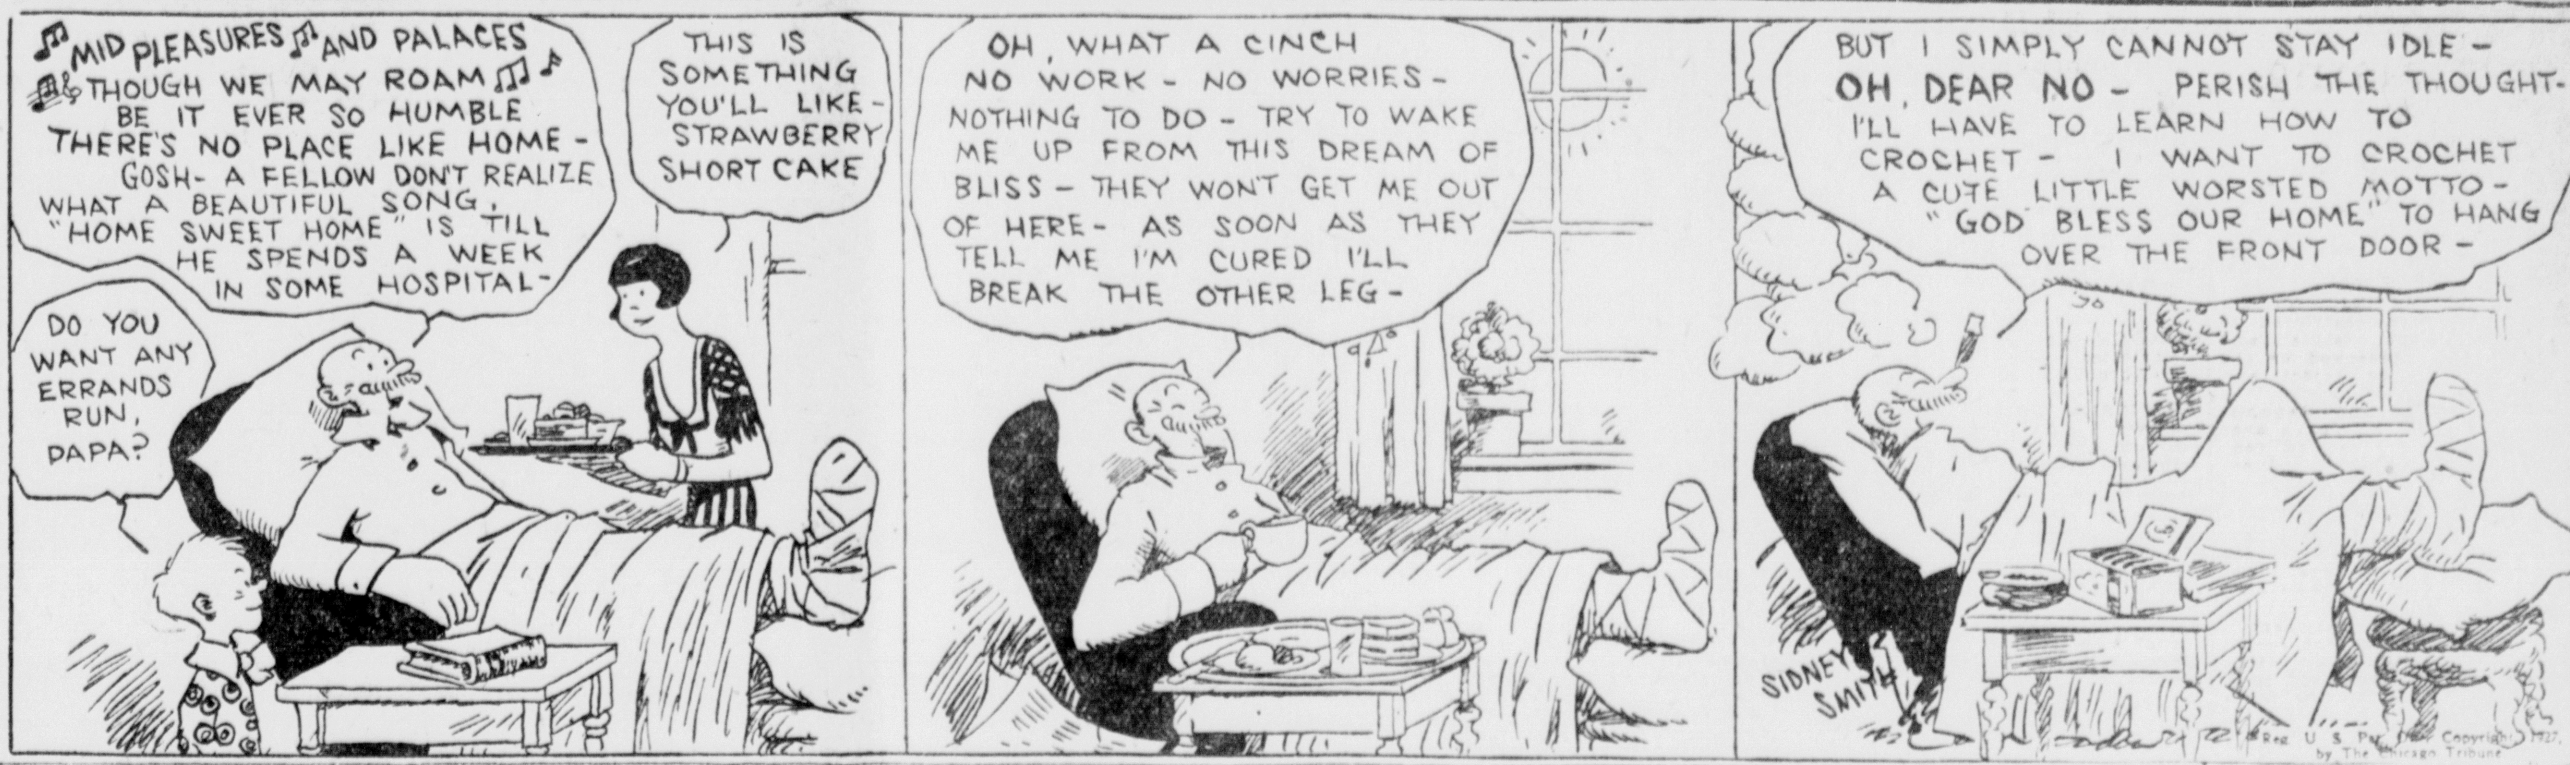

But Bill was not one to lose his courage. When his turn came, he shot as deliberately and carefully as if nothing had happened. One, two, three, went up his score, and the last marble was shot from the ring, making him the winner by two points.

"Hurray for Mill!" The close of the game was the signal for a regular bedlam of noise to be let loose. That Bill had won seemed almost impossible to the audience. The whole neighborhood had turned out more to sympathize with the Ritzies than to expect to see them win, and their shouts of glee and surprise were unending.

Maybe the Ritzies weren't proud as they escorted him home for the initiation ceremony, for wasn't Bill about to become a Ritzie?

Read about it in tomorrow's paper.

LABORATORY WORK OF HEALTH BOARD DEFINED BY TURNER

COLUMBUS, O., June 9.—Members of the state board of health may limit the service of the state laboratory for the diagnosis of contagious and infectious diseases to physicians and surgeons licensed to practice in Ohio, but cannot legally refuse to furnish such service to certain physicians and surgeons whose practice or acts are unethical as measured by the standards of the board or of any academy of medicine "unless such practice or acts are such as to prevent the laboratory from accomplishing the objects of its creation," declared Attorney General Edward C. Turner in an opinion given to Dr. John E. Munger, state health director.

In a ruling, given to Prosecuting Attorney Seth Paulin, Palmsville, Turner held that "a village council may adopt police sanitary and other similar regulations and the proper municipal officers may enforce them within the territorial limits of the municipality including a township park controlled by township trustees."

"Township trustees may adopt by laws, rules and regulations for the purpose of controlling and regulating the use of such park and for the protection of all things therein but have no authority to permit things to be done which would violate the police, sanitary and other similar ordinances legally adopted by the village or to make rules or regulations contrary thereto," declared Turner.

FORMER XENIAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

Word of the death of Arthur Hartwell, 62, former Xenian, real estate operator, Birmingham, Ala., who died after a short illness at his home in that city, has been received here.

Mr. Hartwell had been Birmingham manager of the Judson Broadway Co., Detroit, and had resided in Birmingham since 1911. Born in Selma, O., he graduated from the mechanical engineering department, Ohio State University, in 1888. Shortly after he became connected with the Westinghouse Electric Co., as sales manager of the Pittsburgh branch. He later became general sales manager with offices in Chicago, and remained with the Westinghouse Co. for fifteen years. After leaving the Westinghouse Company he was associated with the Sterling Varnish Co. of Pittsburgh; the Detroit Insulated Wire Co., and the Herreshoff Motor Co., Detroit.

He was married in 1892 to Miss Alice Mooler, Columbus, O., who survives him with two daughters and one son, Mrs. Daniel Hayes.

Port Huron; Mrs. Arnold Stoll, Dearborn; Arthur Hartwell, Jr., Birmingham and two sisters, Mrs. J. H. Hearing, Duluth, Minn., and Mrs. E. H. Piper, Pittsburgh.

Three-fourths cup granulated tapioca, half teaspoon salt, three and a half cups boiling water, one cup figs, half cup brown sugar.

Cook tapioca, salt and boiling water together until clear. Add figs to the tapioca with the sugar. Cook five minutes, pour into a wet mold, chill and serve with cream.

DATE PUDDING
Half cupful flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, half teaspoonful salt, one cupful nuts, one cupful dates, one cupful sugar, two eggs.

Mix and sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cut the nuts and dates into pieces and add with the sugar. Stir in the egg yolks and fold in the beaten egg whites. Bake in a small bread pan in a slow oven forty minutes. Serve hot with whipped cream. As the flavor improves with age this pudding may be kept on hand for emergencies, and may be reheated by steaming or may be served cold.

The Theatre

One of the screen's great gifts to the public is the history lessons contained in such pictures as "The Overland Stage," the Ken Maynard starring feature for First National coming to the Bijou Friday and Saturday.

This impressive production shows Yiddish and Irish immigrant roles in which David Warfield and Blanche Bates were scoring success.

Some of his triumphs came in "The Argyle Case," "Jim Bludso," and "That Man And I." His sartorial elegance and his looks—he was called the handsomest man on the American stage—won him numerous nicknames, among them "Beau Brummel." His addresses before the curtain were considered extremely witty. Hilliard's first marriage terminated in divorce. His second wife, Mrs. Nellie B. Whitehouse Murphy died in 1914. His third matrimonial venture was with Mrs. Olga Everard Williams, daughter of James Everard, brewer. She survives him.

WILLIAM EVANS DIES AT FAIRFIELD

William Evans, 74, died at his home in Fairfield at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

He has been a resident of that village for a number of years. Surviving is his widow, Mrs. Irene Evans; two sons, John, Cleveland, O., and Russell, at home; and one daughter, Mrs. Helen Hitchcock, East Cleveland, Ohio.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Burial will be made in the Fairfield Cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. WILLIAM PENDELL

Mrs. Zora Evelyn Pendell, 62, wife of William Pendell, passed away at her home at Maple Corner, Wednesday night at 10:30 o'clock.

Besides her husband, she leaves

the following children: Nathan, Xenia; Mrs. Sarah Ellen Thompson, Seaman, O.; Mrs. Vina Evelyn Liston, Xenia; and Miss Faye Pendell, at home. Three children preceded her in death. The following brothers and sisters also survive: Lela Newman, Peebles, O.; John Newman, Xenia; Mrs. Mary Walker, Jamestown and Mrs. Sadie Riley, Reardon, O. Funeral services will be held at Locust Grove Cemetery, Adams County, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, with interment there.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

The entrance of America into the World War finds Phillip Wynne Tracy IV suffering from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natalie Jones had had a child's engagement, which was objected to by both Mrs. Tracy and Mr. Jones.

Mrs. Tracy sends Phil a letter of introduction to Maria Tannis, the daughter of her friend, who lives near the training camp to which Phil has been sent. Maria, in her zeal to do her bit, offers her services to the "Y."

Phil's regiment is ordered back to New York, presumably bound for France. In New York he meets Natalie and, their love flaming anew, they plan to be married. The immediate departure of the regiment, however, prevents this.

After a miserable voyage, Phil finds himself in France and the regiment is soon ordered to the front. Almost immediately Phil (although Rod wanted to go) is detailed on an extremely dangerous mission in quest of military information. Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXVII

FOR VALOR ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE

SOMEHOW the lieutenant and Phil got across the Marne, but it was worse on the other side. Phil did not think it humanly possible, even though he had watched it earlier from the outpost through his glasses, for so much killing to have gone on that day.

There were dead men partially in the water. There were men who weren't dead, but dying, who called to them as they swam by: there were men dead in holes they had dug into the hillside to protect themselves, and there were dead men flung sprawling out in the open.

A French sergeant spoke to them and Phil, whose French by now was pretty good, told him that they were Americans and wanted to find out who held the town on the left.

With hardly a word he escorted them—also on his belly—through the adjacent west field, which was strung with barbed wire entanglements.

Finally, after what seemed to Phil an eternity, they reached a round fountain base. Evidently before this time of bloodshed began this tiled facility in which these men were sitting had been filled with the water of the fountain—now it was big, stained and dry. It was a part of the ruins of the old chateau that showed only a pile of stone and mortar in the near distance.

Sitting in this fountain base Lieutenant Dolan and Phil found six French officers, whose faces told him that they felt they had not only lost the day's battle, but that it would only be a question of time when the hated Boche would cross the Marne and then go on to their beloved Paris, and it seemed to him that these living men, in their despair, were more horrifying than the dead ones he had passed such a little while before.

From them the two Americans learned that their countrymen did hold the town.

That morning the Americans and this company of French soldiers Phil had seen so slaughtered, had met the Germans and captured it, and all day long the Boche had tried to take it back.

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV asked himself if any country, let alone a town, was worth that carnage and resultant despair.

Lieutenant Dolan, asking details, learned there were 14 men and six officers left out of a company of 300.

Phil heard someone digging a trench nearby, and the sergeant, as if interpreting his look, said: "We have no time for graves. The men will just pile them in."

Dolan brushed his arm across his eyes and started back without a word. Phil followed.

Ultimately they reached the river. It was dark by now. All along the banks the star shells were turning the night into pyrotechnic glory, which once in a while would die down only to start up again more brightly than before.

They found the bridge and started across. Phil was ahead.

"Everything on earth is hell just now. Good night, buddy."

That Lieutenant Dolan was beyond hearing, he started out. The machine gun bullets on the water hissed and skipped around him as though the Germans, aware that he had information, were determined that information should never get to the American headquarters.

Almost in a state of collapse, at last Phil felt the reeds along the shore. His stomach touched the marshy loam and the acid smell of the gas-filled earth came to him again.

Something like a bee stung him on the shoulder. He choked and spat out what he thought was a mouthful of queer tasting water. Then there came a moment when he realized that he had been hit and that Lieutenant Dolan had not come through. He absolutely lost control of himself.

Someone must get the information to headquarters. As usual, he thought of Rod. He pulled himself up the bank with his one arm, and shrieked, "Rod!" and mercifully fainted.

Three days later he awakened in a hospital back of the lines. He was in a bed, with sheets upon it. He was clean and a woman in a spotted white dress with a red cross on her cap, was bending over him.

He did not know how he had gotten there—he didn't realize what pain and suffering his unconscious condition had caused him. He only knew that he was more comfortable than he had been for months, even if he did find it hard to breathe.

As memory came back to him, he began to question. "Did headquarters get the information? How did it get here? Did they find Lieutenant Dolan's body? What happened to me? How did I get out?"

The sympathizing nurse told him that he had been found with another American boy, at the water's edge. He was underneath the body of that other boy, who was completely riddled with machine gun fire.

Phil had no intuition. It was harder for him to breathe even, than before.

He didn't want to, but he had to ask who it was. He was almost sure he knew. Finally he made himself inquire: "Was that other man Lieutenant Dolan?"

"No. I do not think so."

"Who was it?"

"Do you really want to know?"

"Yes," Phil answered.

"I'll have to look it up," she said, pitying, and disappeared through the door. She came back soon and said: "His name was Rodney Maxwell."

Phil closed his eyes, and with a groan he turned his head toward the wall. A crimson trickle stained the pillow.

"Oh, you've opened your wound again," said the nurse.

Phil had lost consciousness.

It was more than a week afterward that a French officer stopped by the side of the bed and pinned the croix de guerre on Phil's shirt just over his heart, and left a citation on the bed which told that even in his unconscious state he had managed to babble the information asked for—information for which he had been wounded and Lieutenant Dolan killed; information which had caused the death of his best friend, Rodney Maxwell.

All this came to Phillip as the officers stooped to kiss him on both cheeks, and he was met with such a volley of oaths and abuse that he left in horror, thinking the man who had just been honored with one of the great rewards of war had suddenly gone mad.

After he had gone, Phillip Wynne Tracy IV tore the croix de guerre from his bosom and flung it as far as his weak arm was able. What did it mean to him, except to tell him that Rod had gone out of his life forever?

What did it mean, except that his best friend was dead?

What did he care that because of his information the allies were able to hold the hill? Someone was calling it a great patriotic deed.

What in hell was patriotism, anyway? He remembered that he and Rod had felt very patriotic that morning when they signed up together.

Now he couldn't go on without Rod—Rod who had done the bravest act, not for his country, not for all their damned little warring countries—but for him, and he had done it voluntarily, and some idiotic French man had pinned on him the cross, who did not deserve it, and expected him to think he was rewarded "for valor on the field of battle."

He didn't want reward. He wanted Rod—Rod who used to creep through the hedge between their houses and call to him. The sobs came thick and fast. He thought his heart was breaking.

Later that night the nurse picked up the cross and pinned it on his shirt while he was sleeping.

She understood. She also knew that Phil had been brave; that he deserved this medal; that he ought to keep it and when time had partially wiped away his despair the sight of that cross might bring him a modicum of comfort if it only brought to him memories of Rod.

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV stirred in his sleep. The nurse bent over him and murmured, "Yes, I know it's hell. Everything on earth is hell just now. Good night, buddy."

Three months later, Phillip was declared able to rejoin his outfit. His shoulder was completely well and the surgeons had saved the arm that they had thought he would surely lose, by repeated operations. His lungs, however, which had retarded his recovery, were not yet thoroughly healed.

He had had plenty of being ill—he had all he wanted of hospitals, of nurses and care and being done up in cotton batting. He wanted to get back to his outfit.

The bed which had seemed a haven of rest to him when he had first awakened in the hospital, now was torture and the smell of anaesthetics was worse than any other one that he had experienced during the war.

Although the surgeons thought he should be sent home, he begged with such persistence to be sent back to his outfit that at last a doctor more sympathetic than the rest made it possible for him to go.

He was not happy, but it was with less grief than he had felt since he had become conscious that Rod was gone, he prepared to start for his regiment the next day. There at least he would find those who understood.

That night he was brought two letters.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

One letter is from his mother, the other from Natalie. The next chapter also tells more of Major Aukland.

Broadway Tuesday mourned the death of Robert Cochran Hilliard, its Beau Brummel of an epoch when a matinee idol had to be six feet tall and have a bass voice.

Weakened by a six-year struggle with diabetes, the veteran actor and playwright succumbed to heart failure in his home "around the corner" from the theaters that were his hobby.

"Bob" Hilliard began professional life as a stock broker, but he soon deserted the tickers of Wall Street for the footlights of Broadway.

The heyday of his career was reached in the early '90's, when bishop sleeves and congress gaiters were the fashion. He was a matinee idol of the American type, and through him David Belasco in 1905 achieved his desire to present American roles in contrast to the

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles don't know that quick and permanent relief can be accomplished with internal medicine. Cutting or any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will not remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID.

Dr. Leonhardt tried it in many, many cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Sayre's Drug Store today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you.

Here's Real Relief From Neuritis

In 24 to 48 Hours Pains Are Often Relieved and You Get Rest and Comfort Again.

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that rob a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

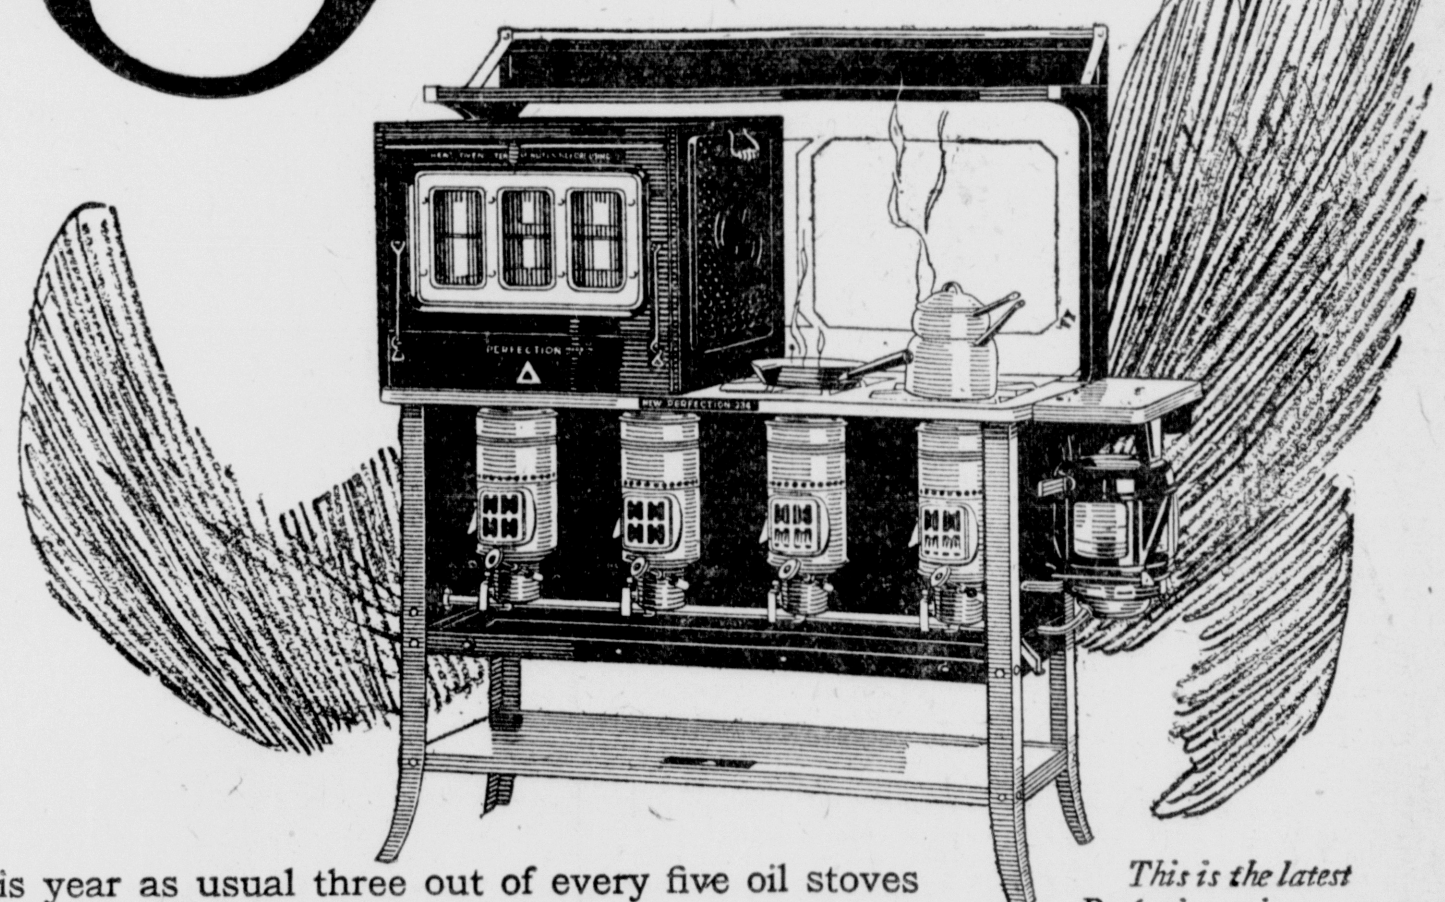

Those are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only partially relieve.

The safest and most efficient way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenburh Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and in about 24 hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced if not almost banished those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more or until you are satisfied with results.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your Neuritis is in the shoulder, arm, neck or legs, Allenburh Special Formula No. 2 should give you speedy relief. Sayre's Drug Store or any good druggist will be glad to supply you.
